Bug-Eyed Monsters? Possible

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — Bug-eyed monsters may exist on planets just as in the science fiction books, a British scientist said Monday.

However, another scientist said the time-travel of science fiction is not possible.

Professor W. T. Williams, a member of the botany department of Southampton University told a conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science it was conceivable that there are manlike creatures swimming on oceans of liquid ammonia on Jupiter, or rock-like men on sun-scorched Mercury.

As a biologist, he said, he is prepared to accept any bug-eyed monster of virtually any shape, provided that he, she or it is large enough to have a sufficiently big brain.

In discussing the planet Jupiter, Williams said: "It is at least conceivable that in those eternally cold seas there may be swimming intelligent animals with an internal chemistry fundamentally very like our own.

"But if there are, we shall never meet face to face, for neither of us can enter the other's world and live."

G. S. Robinson, philosophy lecturer at Southampton University, rejected the concept of time-travel.

He said it implied impossibilities by claiming that the present could be made non-existent by a time-traveller.

Williams said that if there were hundreds of millions of different worlds with life on them, it is quite possible that some had men who shared part of our history.

"In fact, if there is an infinite universe, then there must be an earth on which Hitler won the war," he said.

Commenting on Williams' theory, Robinson said it is similar to one which holds that if enough monkeys tapped on typewriter keys long enough, they would eventually type out all of Shakespeare's works.

BNA CHANGE IN SIGHT?

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Canada's provincial premiers were generally optimistic, as they arrived here Monday for the federal-provincial conference, that a way may soon be found for Canada to amend her own constitution, the British North America Act.

The BNA Act now can only be amended by the British Parliament.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia was the most optimistic that a formula will be worked out here to solve the ticklish constitutional question.

He arrived by plane at the Charlottetown Airport wearing a broad grin and told reporters he thought the chances of success are "100 per cent."

He said exploratory talks on

"bringing home the constitution" have been going on between the provincial attorneys-general in preparation for the conference, and "I think the chances are very good that we will find an answer to the problem."

Repatriation of the constitution has been a thorn in the side of the Canadian government for years, but until now, no agreement has been reached among the provinces as to the way it

History Lives For Premiers

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers sped into Charlottetown by air Monday to steep themselves in history before tackling the constitution conceived 100 years ago when the Fathers of Confederation rowed ashore here from a creaking ship.

The elected leaders will see the whole scene re-created from 100 years ago before they sit themselves in the same old leather chairs and talk about the same constitution across the same old table.

FROM SCRATCH

That first conference started the constitution from scratch. Wednesday's meeting is designed to bring it home so the Canadian Parliament can make amendments without reference to Westminster.

"I think we had better wait for the talks," said Mr. Pearson in reply to airport questions about the probable outcome of the half-day conference.

But before they get to the talks the 11 leaders are going to plunge back into history for

His Home Flooded With Wine

SETE, France (AP) — Jacques Rony got a free delivery of 10,000 quarts of red wine Monday, but he wished he hadn't.

The wine came from a tank-trailer that broke loose from a truck and crashed through the wall of his house.

Bearing Gifts!

Welcomed by Premier Shaw of Prince Edward Island, Prime Minister Pearson, left, arrives in Charlottetown for today's federal-provincial conference. Buddhists Pledge Moratorium On Disturbances

SAIGON (UPI)—Buddhist leaders today joined students in pledging a two-month moratorium on demonstrations while South Viet Nam's new government seeks to stabilize the country.

In a communique issued early today, the Buddhists added they would call a general strike if the government failed to produce democratic reforms by Oct. 27.

CLOSE MARKETS

A strike, they said, would force markets in Saigon to close and cut off food supplies to the capital city.

Students pledged a qualified moratorium on demonstrations Monday to permit the new acting premier, Nguyen Xuan Oanh, to rebuild the fragmented government.

Violent protests over a period of six days by the students and Buddhists brought the downfall of the government of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned as president.

Oanh is serving under a triumvirate of generals which includes Khanh.

The Buddhist statement praised the goodwill of the Roman Catholic Church in South Viet Nam, thus easing tensions between the two religious groups, which had engaged in murderous riots last week.

Second World War Left Lasting Scars

BERLIN (AP)—The German army marched into Poland 25 years ago today and touched off the Second World War.

The resulting holocaust brought death to millions, radical changes in the map of Europe and the beginning of the East-West struggle. Germany was left prostrate with its capital, Berlin, a pile of rubble.

The war's effects still are felt today in scattered war crimes trials throughout West Germany and in the division of Germany and Europe into Communist and non-Communist spheres. Although Adolf Hitler considered Nazi Germany a bulwark against communism, his action in starting the war brought the Communist armies into the heart of Europe. They stand now only 125 miles from the Rhine.

As of 0445 hours (4:45 a.m.) we are shooting back. With those words on Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler announced to an emergency session of the Reichstag that German troops had fired on Polish forces.

What Hitler thought would remain a local war turned into a Europe-wide conflict when France and Britain declared war on Germany on Sept. 3 and into a world war in 1941 when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

That attack was followed by Germany declaring war on the United States.

By the war's end in 1945, Germany had mobilized more than 18,000,000 men, of whom 3,500,000 died in battle. The Soviet Union, with a peak strength of 12,500,000 soldiers, suffered the heaviest casualties and officially lists 7,500,000 troops dead.

The United States mobilized more than 16,000,000 men. American deaths from combat and other causes totalled 405,399.

Germany still carries the most obvious scar of the war—the split into Communist and Western sections.

More Remain Problem

Fears Still Beset Many Chinese

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twin tales of fear were told here Monday by Chinese immigrants. For some, granted amnesty as illegal entrants who came to Canada falsely identified as relatives of close friends, the fear has ended.

For an estimated 500 Chinese, however, the fear remains.

A 35-year-old father of three, who declined to give reporters his name, said in an interview he is not eligible for recently announced legal entry status because he came here on a forged passport. "The fear started on the freighter trip out here," he said.

"I was afraid someone would ask me a question about Canada that I couldn't answer."

"It never really went away because any sort of check on the passport would give me away. Even getting stopped for a traffic ticket 'makes me cringe.'"

To get the false passport in Hong Kong, he said, he borrowed about $500 in Canadian currency to pay to a dealer. Passport dealers have contacts in Canada who get real passports from Chinese-Canadians and send them to the Orient where they are altered to suit the new owners.

"When I arrived in Vancouver some cousins hid me for a few days until I found a job. Then I started hiding myself."

He said the Chinese community here has a protective mechanism that warns members when a immigration or

RCMP men are getting close. Lam Yung Foon and Lam Yung Chow are two illegal immigrants who did qualify for amnesty. They are brothers.

"Every time we woke up, we wondered if that day would be our last in Canada," Lam Yung Chow said.

When the federal government announced amnesty in 1960, they "went down and became immigrants."

The brothers had been in Canada, illegally, since 1956, sponsored by a cousin who said they were his sons.

But there is a third class of illegal immigrant roaming Chinatown in a quandary.

He came to Canada after falsely stating he was related to his sponsor. He should qualify for amnesty, but doesn't dare apply.

In his case, the sponsor is here on an illegal passport. To name him could result in the sponsor being sent back to the Orient.

L. C. Hawkins, regional immigration director, says about 1,100 illegal immigrants have come forward to claim amnesty since the program was started.

He estimates another 2,000 remain in hiding. Some 500 are the forged-passport cases.

Ingrained fear of police action, prosecution and deportation keeps some from coming forward, he believes.

"This, coupled with the fact that the amnesty does not cover the illegal passport cases, is a real problem," he said.

Exiles Hit Cuban Post

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Anti-Castro communists destroyed a radio station commanded by three Russian officers and manned by 150 Cuban soldiers on the eastern coast of Cuba Sunday, Cuban exile leader Manuel Artiles said Monday night.

Poverty Stamps Issued

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed into law Monday night a key part of his "war on poverty"—a permanent, U.S.-wide food stamp plan to bolster the diets of needy families.

Under the food stamp plan, qualifying U.S. families could buy $10 worth of food stamps for $5 cash, on the average, and spend the stamps in the corner grocery for almost any food item.

The law expands a pilot program started by the late President Kennedy.

The new program is expected to cost $25,000,000 the first year, $15,000,000 the next, $100,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967.

Keating Named

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Kenneth B. Keating, still refusing to endorse Barry Goldwater for president, was unanimously nominated for re-election Monday by the New York Republican party.

Negroes, Whites Go to School Without Fuss

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—White and Negro first-grade pupils went to class together in this Gulf Coast resort city Monday, the first mixing of the races below the college level in Mississippi schools.

Sixteen Negro pupils, 12 girls and four boys, quietly joined several hundred whites at four previously all-white elementary schools. They were there by virtue of a federal court order.

'NO PROBLEMS'

"We anticipated no problems and we had no problems," School Supt. R. D. Brown said.

Mississippi thus became the last state in the U.S. to commence public school integration below the college level.

Elsewhere in the south expanded school desegregation was uniformly quiet. It apparently signalled an end of the long, bitter resistance of a decade.

BARRIERS DOWN

Barriers tumbled in Americus, Augusta and Marietta, Ga.; Panama City, Fla.; Richmond and Beaufort Counties, S.C., and rural Amelia County, Va.

In Americus, Ga., a rural-oriented city beset last summer by large-scale demonstrations and arrests, the unannounced entry of three Negroes to the white high school produced no immediate sign of resistance.

NEW LAW

The American school board had given no hint of the desegregation. In a statement for the board, Superintendent Clay said: "This was done in compliance with the newly enacted Civil Rights Law."

She'll Star As Harlow

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Carroll Baker will play the title role in Jean Harlow, based on the stormy life of the movie's greatest sex symbol. Producer Joseph Levine presented Miss Baker, dressed like the late star, at a press conference.

British Parties Plan Election Manifestoes

LONDON (CP)—The two major parties today entered the final stage of hammering out their general election manifestoes.

The date for the election looks more and more like Oct. 15—after the Queen returns from Canada—and it is possible Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home will make the formal announcement next week.

BRIEFING SESSION

Tory headquarters announced Monday Douglas-Home will address nearly 300 parliamentary candidates Saturday as the climax of a two-day briefing session.

Meanwhile Harold Wilson, Labour party leader, went over his draft manifesto Monday at his office in the House of Commons with Deputy Leader George Brown and Opposition Whip Herbert Bowden.

Members of the party's campaign committee also had their first look at the completed

Loan Information Due Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon announced Monday night that brochures outlining the procedure for needy students seeking loans under the Canada student loans plan will be sent out next week to banks and provincial authorities. They also may be obtained by writing to the finance department in Ottawa.

Amnesty Clears Some

Haircuts Now $2.25

SEATTLE (AP)—Haircuts in union barber shops in King County will go up to $2.25 from $1, the barbers' union announced Monday. The increase, first in this area since 1953, was approved in mail referendum, 547-198.

He Hates Drunk Drivers

Drunken drivers don't top anybody's popularity poll—but few people hate them the way Robert Malkin does.

The 51-year-old former lumber mill operator who passed through Victoria Monday believes the law mollycoddles drunk drivers when they cause accidents.

He comes by his convictions the hard way. Last year his son, an only child, was killed with a companion in a California smash-up. The driver of the second car, an unemployed, uninsured grave-digger, was ultimately convicted of manslaughter.

ONE YEAR
The 22-year-old man was sentenced to one year in jail on each of the two manslaughter counts, but liquor charges against him were dropped, said Mr. Malkin.

TOOK STEPS
"The judge made the sentences concurrent, both to be served at once. He'll be free after serving about 8½ months," he added.

He picked up his son's wrecked car from a junkyard, had it mounted on the back of a truck and toured the major cities of California, where he made pleas for signatures on a petition to state officials. It asked stiffer laws against drunk drivers.

1,700 SIGN
After six weeks of touring with the car he had 1,700 signatures and a growing committee of Californians to carry on his crusade after he returned to his Vancouver home.

The movement reached the California government's ears and resulted in an invitation for Mr. Malkin to speak to the state's lawmakers later this year.

LESS PROGRESS
He hasn't made the same progress in his own country. Here the wheels of justice grind more slowly. Under the Criminal Code of Canada a driver has a right to refuse to take a blood, urine or breath test for alcohol.

Only one province, Saskatchewan, has a law which can be used to cancel a driver's licence if he refuses to submit to a test.

LOSING PROTECTION
Civil rights protectors already decry the whittling away of basic legal protections of the individual.

While provincial attorneys-general pass the compulsory-test issue to the federal government, one B.C. cabinet minister supports Mr. Malkin all the way. After meeting him, Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi told reporters, "I back him up."

DOWN TO BUSINESS
The long-time advocate of tougher dealings with all drinking drivers added, "Either we get down to the business of accepting the fact that safety is our business; or recognize that we are just being mealy-mouthed, doing a lot of talking about highway safety without the guts to back it up with action."

The criminal law section of the Commission of Uniformity of Legislation in Canada, a group of attorney-general's department officials (from all provinces) This amazes Mr. Malkin, but it doesn't have the matter on the agenda for its next meeting.

a taste of 1864, the year Charlottetown earned the title Cradle of Confederation and the groundwork was laid for Canada.

The Coast Guard ship Ernest Lapointe, decked out in something resembling a 100-year-old superstructure to look like the original ship Queen Victoria that carried the Fathers of Confederation here, will drop anchor in the harbor Tuesday and some of Canada's top actors will relive the historic landing.

INFORMAL CHAT
After a brief dockside ceremony, the "Upper Canadians" will climb into horse-drawn carriages and go to the old grey stone provincial building for an informal chat with their present day successors before re-enacting the conference of 100 years ago.

Then, true to history, they will go to the grounds of Government House for a re-enactment of the famed G. P. Robertson's photograph. In the evening Mr. Pearson, the premiers and the actors will all take in a Wayne and Shuster show at the new Confederation Memorial Centre, to be officially opened by the Queen in October.

Wednesday, as the Queen Victorian churns toward Halifax, minister and premiers will push Saint John, N.B., and St. John's, Nfld., for brief visits, the prime draft, which will be passed to the national executive and the shadow cabinet for final approval.

Douglas-Horne, now on holiday in Scotland, will see the Queen Friday when they both attend the opening of a new £24,000,000 ($72,000,000) road bridge over the Firth of Forth near Edinburgh.

The possibility that Douglas-Horne might speak to the Queen then about election arrangements has led to speculation that an announcement of the all-important date may soon follow.

Officials discounted the chances of an announcement this week and this apparently eliminates Oct. 1 as a possible date. It has been customary in post-war years to give at least a month's notice of the contests and Sir Alec has indicated he will follow the custom.

The Tory candidates at their weekend meeting will hear speeches by Housing Minister Keith Joseph, Pensions Minister Richard Wood and Commonwealth Minister Duncan Sandys. A key address will be delivered by Lord Blakenham, party chairman.

Some political pundits swear that glorious summer weather has contributed to an upswing in Tory fortunes. There has been much speculation on what strategy the party will use but Blakenham indicated in a speech Saturday he will again lean on the "You've never had it so good" theme.

This slogan did wonders for former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan in his landslide victory of 1957—but Blakenham seems prepared to go Macmillan one better.

But Blakenham declared: "Almost without exception people in Britain have never been better off than they are today."

Heart Attacks Prevented By Thinning of the Blood

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain thinning of the blood? I have a heart condition (angina and coronary attacks). The doctor takes blood from my arm and analyzes it, but I don't understand what this is for—K.C.

Certain heart conditions are a result of clogging of the arteries of the heart. (The same thing applies to some forms of strokes, and to other conditions.) However, when certain arteries have become narrower than they formerly were, it is important to take steps to be sure that these restricted places are not shut off completely.

NATURAL CLOT

As you know, if you cut or scratch your finger, it bleeds for a bit, and then stops. Why does it stop? Because your blood has an innate ability to close such small (or perhaps large) wounds. The blood forms a "clot." A material in the blood called "prothrombin" has a great deal to do with this.

For wounds, we normally want the clot to form rapidly, of course.

But with certain people having conditions like yours, we prefer that the clotting be slower; better that a cut bleeds a little bit longer, rather than that a blood vessel becomes clogged, in case the clotting happens to occur at that point.

SAFE BALANCE

So we give an "anticoagulant," a drug which keeps the blood from clotting so rapidly. At the same time, we do not want to give so much that it interferes with the rapid healing of such small wounds (cuts, scratches or even bruises beneath the skin) as you may encounter.

In order to achieve a safe balance (slow enough clotting inside the blood vessels, yet still rapid enough if you have some small wound) we want to know exactly how rapidly your blood will clot.

BLOOD SAMPLE

We do this by taking a sample of blood and performing what we call a "prothrombin time test," to see how rapidly your blood will clot when compared to that of a person who has not had the medication.

A certain amount of the "thinning" drug (Coumadin being one of them) may be too much for one person, too little for another.

Taking periodic tests is the way to be sure. Depending on the result of the tests, we then can increase or decrease the amount of the medication.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain a fat tumor. What makes it different from others? Can it become malignant? A friend of mine has had one for 15 years.—P.L.

A "tumor" means an overgrowth of cells—more grow at a certain place than are supposed to. This is possible in almost any part of the body, although some places are less likely to have tumors than others.

Thus a fatty tumor is one that grows in the fat cells. There can also be skin tumors, bone tumors, tumors in muscle areas. The growth (or tumor) will be of whatever type of tissue it is.

When a tumor is malignant, that is, cancerous, it keeps on growing, and finally begins to spread to other tissues. An ordinary, or benign, tumor does not do this.

Fatty tumors (or lipomas) do NOT tend to become malignant. They are usually left alone unless they are unsightly, or large enough of so located as to be painful or a nuisance.

Terrorist Tie-Up?

MONTREAL (CP)—Insp. Roland Perron said Monday police are not ready "at this stage" of their investigations to link Saturday's gang raid of a small firearms shop to any specific organized terrorist group.

Insp. Perron, with the police anti-terrorist squad and in charge of the case, said the four bandits captured after a gun battle in which two persons were killed have revolutionary tendencies.

"That's all I can say. I can never tie them up with any organized terrorist group. Not at this stage."

DIED IN BATTLE

Leslie McWilliams, 58, a vice-president, and Alfred Pinish, 37, a gunsmith, died in the furious gun-battle that broke out when police intercepted the bandits at the retail store of the International Firearms Company on Bleury Street in the city's financial district.

One of the bandits was shot in the thigh, and is under heavy police guard at St. Luke Hospital. Montreal Island's combined police forces, numbering some 4,000 men, are spreading a dragnet for a fifth bandit still at large.

Police said Pinish may have been killed by a police bullet in the confusion.

At the height of the shooting, Pinish managed to slip unnoticed into the cellar from where he emerged minutes later armed with a semi-automatic rifle.

Insp. Perron said a police officer may have mistaken Pinish for one of the bandits when the gunsmith appeared as a dark figure at the top of the stairs. The policeman called out a warning in French for the man to throw down his gun. When he didn't, the policeman fired. Pinish's body was found later slumped on the cellar steps.

The Montreal Star quotes "a ranking" police officer that the bandits had been members of a well-known Quebec separatist group.

SEPARATIST GROUP

The newspaper said "all but two or three terrorists arrested in recent months for armory firearms raids . . . and acts of sabotage had been listed on membership rolls" of the separatist group.

One high-ranking police officer said police had been expecting "for some time" that terrorists would be staging a raid to replenish weapons stocks depleted by recent police raids on their hideouts.

Side Effects Cut

New Pill To Cost $2 Monthly

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI)—The Upjohn Co. Monday introduced a new oral contraceptive pill which will sell for $2 for a month's supply.

The company said the product, called Provest, appears effective in preventing pregnancy, produces virtually no side effects and does not interfere with the menstrual cycle. It also said clinical tests had shown that women desiring children conceived readily upon stopping use of the drug.

LITTLE RISK

Because it is not derived from male hormones, according to Dr. Harold Upjohn, the company's clinical research director, Provest incurs little risk of masculinizing effects in female infants born to women who take the drug, then discontinue it in order to become pregnant.

It has been tested so far on 4,000 women, the company said.

WIDELY USED

The ingredients are medroxy-progesterone acetate, used on 1,000,000 patients since 1959 for therapeutic spontaneous abortion and menstrual disorders, and ethinyl estradiol, an estrogen in wide use since 1944. The ratio of progesterone to estrogen is 200 to 1.

A relatively high estrogen content is believed to have caused harmful side effects resulting from early oral contraceptives.

U Thant Declares:

Power for World Depends on Atom

GENEVA (Reuters)—United Nations Secretary-General U Thant told the third Atomic for Peace conference Monday that harnessing the atom offers the only way of meeting the world's growing power demands.

He said the quest for a controlled thermo-nuclear reaction had become virtually the common endeavor of the scientific community of many nations.

CANADIAN REPORT

The conference, attended by 4,000 scientists and other experts, has accepted 750 papers from 37 countries, including Canada. Most of them deal with the experience of various nations with nuclear power plants.

In a message to the conference, Soviet Premier Khrushchev expressed the hope the delegates would make a new major contribution to scientific collaboration.

U Thant said international co-operation is imperative if the smaller and less developed countries are to share in the advance of more industrialized nations. He predicted the peaceful uses of the atom would eventually be regarded as the work of all mankind rather than the exclusive preserve of individual nations.

Professor Vasily Emelyanov of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, who presided over the conference, said the power of the atom must not be buried "under the fragments of a vanishing civilization."

AFTER 1980

Canadian scientists said Canada is likely to step up construction of nuclear power plants about 1980, but until then little more than a prototype plant would be in operation.

The Canadian paper, drawn up by Dr. W. B. Lewis and T. G. Church, both of the Chalk River, Ont., nuclear laboratories, said forecasts indicated increasing demands for electricity and by 1980 the harnessing of major obvious water power resources would be essentially complete.

Helpful Move?

Johnson Off Ballot Alabamans Decide

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Alabama's unpledged Democratic electors met with Gov. George Wallace late today and decided today in the presidential race, virtually guaranteeing that President Johnson's name will not be on the ballot in Alabama.

This would mean Johnson could receive only write-in votes in November in the state. There had been widespread speculation the unpledged electors would resign in favor of a slate pledged to Johnson. Many felt this would have been even worse for Johnson than not being on the ballot, since it would have given voters a clear choice between him and Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Judge Roy Mayhall, loyalist chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, had said he would not permit the electors to resign, since they had been chosen by voters in the May primary over a slate pledged to President Johnson.

Lt. Gov. Jim Allen, one of the electors, said no plans were being made for an active campaign against Goldwater.

Asked whether the electors, if successful, might vote for Johnson, Allen said "I found no sentiment for President Johnson among the electors."

Boy in Good Condition After Savage Beating

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Joan Pearce of North Vancouver complained to the RCMP Monday that a neighborhood man savagely beat her 12-year-old son.

Mrs. Pearce said her son told her the attack occurred when a dispute developed among neighborhood children, including the man's daughter.

She said the man kept picking Philip up and knocking him down, and holding him by the throat.

"Finally he either jumped or stood on Philip's leg, and boys who were there heard the bone crack," she said.

The boy was in good condition in hospital.

Up to Itself

PREMIER BENNETT has gone to the Confederation conference in Charlottetown this week, part of the celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of the first meeting of the "Fathers" of Canada, with a discussion of the nation's constitution in mind. There is a plan extant, he says, drawn up by provincial attorneys-general for bringing it under Canadian control.

Even if by the protocol of procedure it has not seemed to be so, the B. N. A. Act, the constitutional basis of Confederation, has actually been under Canadian control for some years. Although a British statute and therefore requiring amendments to it to be passed by the Westminster parliament, this has been a purely formal course of action, and one which British authorities have long wished to be relieved. They do not like to have to rubber stamp their own legislation, which is the position forced on them since no change in the B. N. A. Act is disputed by them and amendments are thus automatic. If it has been embarrassing for Canada to go to London to change its constitution the situation has been no less embarrassing for the British parliament.

Apparent as well as actual control of its own constitution is a matter for Canada to settle for itself, but this has been bedevilled by the difficulty of agreement between federal and provincial governments on the division of responsibilities and respective jurisdiction. And rivalry on these matters has been heightened recently by the growing demands of the provinces for a bigger slice of the national wealth. The B. N. A. Act, as well as the formal transfer of its provisions to the Canadian parliament, requires quantity revision to suit present conditions if not entirely to be scrapped and a wholly new constitution devised to take its place.

What the attorneys-general plan is to overcome the current difficulties has yet to be made known, but if federal authorities have had no hand in its drafting the prospect of agreement in the light of the usual hiatus between federal and provincial capitals would not seem to be too bright.

Constitutions are not changed or created overnight but if there is no serious attempt to bring the B. N. A. Act into line with present national needs a beginning of the task is to be commended. And no one will be happier than the British parliament when this is effected. Control of its own constitution is entirely a matter for Canada itself.

Council's Dilemma

CITY COUNCIL is in a dilemma over the large gap between the estimate of the cost of renovating the police station and adding a new magistrate's court building and the lowest tender on the work. This miscalculation seems hardly likely to be the last encountered in the five-year, $3,387,000 capital budget approved so overwhelmingly in June by the owner-electors of Victoria; even if it has come as an unpleasant surprise so early in the program. Circumstances will change, and that is why flexibility is an important virtue of the capital-budget plan.

Mayor Wilson has suggested that by cutting out all frills from the police station project it may still be possible to do the job for the amount of money the city anticipated paying. It would take a lot of cutting to save $168,000, the difference between the estimate and the lowest bid, however, and surely some of the economies would have to go beyond the "frill" category. Whether this would be wise is open to question.

There would not be much point in so drastically reducing the scale of the undertaking that in short order the station and the court would again be unsatisfactory and demanding of further expenditure; in the long run the cost might well be considerably higher and the result less to Victoria's liking.

This suggests that, unless council finds itself irrevocably committed to other works in its initial schedule under the capital budget, it should give serious consideration to whether some other high-priority undertaking or a portion of it could be more favorably delayed.

It will hardly be to the civic administration's discredit if at this time and as often as may be advantageous in the five-year period it shifts emphasis for the sake of getting the best value for the taxpayers' money.

A Good Choice

CONFIRMATION of Mr. Earle Westwood's appointment as B.C.'s agent-general in London has been forthcoming and he has already departed to take up his new post. He will relieve Mr. John Fisher, formerly the chief economic adviser to the government, who at 72 years of age is retiring after long and distinguished service in the provincial civil service.

The choice of Mr. Westwood is an apt one, and with his insight into the nuances of the Bennett regime and its policies he should be a valuable factor in promoting the well-being of B.C. at the important London office. British Columbia ranks highly among the representative agencies of the Commonwealth in the British capital.

If there are those who eye with some cynicism the award of plum positions to defeated cabinet ministers the rebuttal is that in this instance the appointment is well merited. A capable man should not be eschewed because he has been a politician, and Mr. Westwood's rejection at the polls last year by a narrow margin was a distinct loss to the Bennett cabinet. He had proved himself an able and popular administrator.

His long public experience in public affairs, in his home town of Nanaimo which he served notably and well, coupled with his fine work as B.C.'s first recreation minister, fits him amply to represent the province in London at its official headquarters there.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

MONEY, said Emerson, is the prose of life ... and as beautiful as roses.

Another more prosaic writer said it was a brutal thing. It can't be both but at least money is an interesting subject.

Some people affect a disdain of such mercenary subjects as paper dollars and nickel coins, but perhaps only because they have a store of them cashed out of sight.

Nobody can get along without money.

So it is a quite natural and normal ambition to lay hold of as much of it as is possible—legitimately of course. This is not an essay on the black market.

Who steals my purse steals trash, cried Iago. What a notion!

Admittedly it is a nuisance, all this bother with money. And it causes some honest men to adopt queer poses in order to get some. There are chaps who smell beer barrel bungs and others who let their hair get snappy and give youngsters the shakes—all for the confidential rustle of slips of paper etched with a money sign.

Others fill valuable space with idle remarks, as possibly you have noticed on occasion.

What does this indicate? Only that there is no open door in this bank-note world for the moneyless man, as another pundit declared. How right he was.

What a pity we have to eat, or go to shows, or buy clothes, or furniture, or books to read, or ... It is frightening to think you might as well crawl into a thicket like a wounded animal if you have no money and no hope of getting any.

It is in moments like these you long for an exotic land where you believe all you need is a loincloth and a good right arm to pick luscious fruit from trees provided by nature, gratis.

Even then, according to the anthropologists, you couldn't escape the bane of civilization. The jungle has its money, too. The difference between a dollar bill and, for instance, a cowrie shell is merely one of appearance, not degree.

Both are money.

The man in Victoria who pays an account by cheque is doing the same as a Hindu Indian who dips into a leather pouch and produces the head of a red woodpecker in payment.

The medium is varied but the worries are universal.

Down in the South Seas the natives use shell money. Or they do unless "civilization" has recently enveloped them. And they have banks, a community house hidden in the bush. Few of them keep more "cash" in the house than is necessary, a practice that has a familiar ring about it.

There is, or was, pig money also, made of shell discs, glass beads and dog teeth. It is used to buy pigs and women. There is glass money, stone money, feather money, rice money—and tobacco money.

You see, it is all one world.

And what does this add up to? Listen to a certain comedian, who wasn't really being funny:

"If a man runs after money, he's money-mad; if he keeps it he's a capitalist; if he spends it he's a playboy; if he doesn't try to get it he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite; and if he accumulates it after a life-time of hard-work people call him a fool who never got anything out of life."

So have it as you view it, so long, I suppose, as you have it. Money was originally a token. Now it's a commodity. And how one needs it.

Stimulant to Prosperity

ABOUT 1,000,000 workers are now migrating annually from the poorer countries of southern and southeastern Europe to jobs created by shortage of labor in the richer states of the northwest. More than 2,500,000 foreign migrant workers—mostly Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Greek, Turkish and Yugoslav—are earning their living, mostly in West Germany, France, Switzerland, but also in Britain, Belgium and the Netherlands.

The movement of foreign labor has proved a powerful stimulant to economic expansion and personal prosperity in non-Communist Europe in the past five years. It has helped both the receiving countries and the labor exporting countries by relieving economic and political pressures of unemployment and low wages in these states.

Migrants send to their home countries millions of dollars worth of foreign currencies. For instance, in Switzerland, Italian building workers, earning about $30 a week, send home as much as two-thirds of their wages. Italians in West Germany are estimated to send home more than $150 million a year.

The foreign migrants now working in Western Europe parallel the movement to Britain of 500,000 colored Commonwealth citizens and 350,000 Irish workers. Britain would be hard hit without this labor force. The public transport system, particularly in London, the hospital services, and the building industry would be in acute difficulties.

The International Catholic Migration Committee said in a recent report that up to 1963 the total number of migrant workers in Europe tended to increase each year, but last year there was a slight decline. This was almost entirely due to a fall in the number of Italian emigrants. Until 1961 Italians provided over half the migrant labor in Europe. The proportion then fell from 54 per cent to 42 per cent in 1963. Fewer Italians are entering France and West Germany, and only in Switzerland do they amount to more than half of total immigration—about 73 per cent. This falling off is the result of Italy's economic expansion in the past few years.

But, in place of the Italians, more and more Spaniards are heading north to find better-paid jobs. In the six main receiving countries the proportion of Spanish migrants rose from 19 per cent of the total foreign

Dateline: Europe

KHRUSHCHEV'S recent speeches on economic matters heralded two important developments: general rise in wages and adjustment of the investment policies. Both decisions are closely linked.

Ever since the aggravation of the Sino-Soviet conflict, the Russian government has been compelled to pay greater attention to public opinion. Pressure which comes from what might be called the "left," forces a weak regime to change its position. The Soviet Union has hence been compelled to give in towards the "right." This incidentally pleases the young technocrats who gradually replace the old revolutionaries on all levels of administration and economy.

From a practical point of view the new Soviet approach means a gradual extension of the area of private initiative. It admits furthermore a rise in the standard of living of a population permitted to buy goods available only a short while ago.

Europe's Migrating Millions

Swiss ban entry of families of workers unless the foreigner has worked continuously in the country for 10 years, and this causes great dissatisfaction.

The third largest magnet for migrants is France. Ten years ago there were 1,500,000 foreign residents, of whom 500,000 were wage earners. The number steadily increased. About 20 per cent of migrants from southern Europe—some 200,000—seek a better life in France each year, and in addition there are an estimated 250,000 Algerians working in the country. Thousands of poverty-stricken Portuguese have been entering France clandestinely across the Pyrenees, and many now work in Paris and other cities as waiters.

Generally speaking, however, the entry of southern European migrants into the prosperous countries of Western Europe is well organized. Nearly all workers require labor and residence permits. Fears in the Common Market countries that the Community's policy of removing general restrictions on the free movement of workers would result in a flood of "cheap labor" have not been justified.

The country with the highest proportion of foreign workers is Switzerland. They number more than a third of the entire working population. More than 70 per cent are Italian, followed by Spaniards, Germans, French and Greeks. They are spread through most branches of Swiss industry. Last year the flow of foreigners seeking work grew so great—it reached almost 800,000—that it threatened to get out of hand and the Swiss government imposed restrictions to control entry as part of its fight against inflation. The Swiss trade unions pressed for limitation, declaring they could not restrict wage demands unless the government cut down the number of foreign workers and reduced the working week. There is a shortage of accommodation and much serious overcrowding in flats and shanty-towns. The

Forbidden Fruit in Egypt

Booming Black Market

ALTHOUGH the import of foreign luxury goods is forbidden in the United Arab Republic there is a thriving sale in Cairo, Alexandria and Port Said of these products. Street vendors set up their stocks of contraband cosmetics, foodstuffs, nylon stockings and foreign cigarettes on street corners.

In some Cairo streets there are four or five of these "black market" stalls to a block of houses—and cry their wares cheerfully and stridently.

In some shops cosmetics, foodstuffs, cloth and clothes are displayed in the windows and on shelves. Noting a display of American, English and French delicacies in a grocery—at prohibitive prices—I asked the owners if restrictions on such imports had been lifted. "No, all of these are black market goods from Gaza," he announced in a booming voice.

From time to time the police swoop on the pedlars, round them up—sometimes after beating them—and take them away. But they re-appear after a couple of days, or others take their place. Some representatives of the law are regular customers. I have seen policemen walk up to a pedlar's stall laden with contraband goods, but far from enforcing the law they have examined the goods, bag-gled over prices and then handed over their money for the forbidden foreign fruit.

In Alexandria and Port Said, pedlars hawk in cafes and restaurants, bearing enormous suitcases crammed with lengths of cloth, nylon stockings and underwear, transistor radios, fountain pens, timed fruits and foodstuffs and cigarettes. In Cairo this type of hawking is chiefly confined to contraband cigarettes, which the pedlar rarely camouflages by offering the foreign brands in domestic cartons. They have nothing to fear, since most Egyptians seem to prefer to "buy foreign" at any price, no matter how bad the quality, rather than buy locally-made goods that are cheaper and sometimes superior in quality.

Many goods on the black market are old stock, deteriorated, or imitations and there are many complaints that bottles and boxes do not contain the goods advertised on the labels, especially perfumes and cosmetics. Bottles of whisky bought at bargain prices sometimes contain weak tea or colored water, the original contents having been extracted by means of a hypodermic syringe pushed through the cork.

The Alexandria Chamber of Commerce has drawn the attention of the ministry of economics to the booming racket, and has urged closer control over smuggling. There is a saying here that if you scratch an Egyptian official you will find, under a veneer of Arab socialism, one constantly on the lookout for a bargain or a way of outwitting the law.

A well-known woman writer who visited the U.A.R. recently told me she was shocked when she went to Gaza to find that the Egyptian official accompanying her was so interested in buying contraband goods that he had very little time left in which to show her the Palestine refugee camps.

The authorities do not grant U.A.R. citizens visas to leave the country—except on officially-sanctioned business. Visas can be obtained, however, by slipping a backsheesh to a minor employee of the passport office, who passes it on—after deducting his share—to the right person. Sometimes the applicant is unlucky—money and underlings disappear, but if he is willing to repeat the operation he usually succeeds. Contraband pedlars are also usually equipped with "official" customs clearance papers.

Money, jewels, antiques and other forbidden items are smuggled out of the country through "friends" in the customs house who are willing to overlook the rules for a small reward—which does not usually exceed 40 per cent of the value of the goods. The same applies to imported contraband. Occasionally one of these "friends" becomes ambitious and strikes up a friendship with the authorities. In such cases the smuggling passes safely through the customs, having paid his due, but is arrested on the other side of the customs barrier by officials who have been tipped off by his "friends," who then cashes in a second time—from the authorities.

Far from being worried by government threats to put an end to their activities the hawkers are looking forward to even brisker trade in the near future, for there are rumors that the ministry of supply intends to ban the import of alcoholic drinks, except for sale in hotels.

Political Offbeat

Political Fraternity

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

If you've been thinking that the Conservatives, especially in the Great Flag War, fought as an army, or at least as a team—you're right, they have.

Perhaps one of the reasons they display this party discipline, this co-ordination of teamwork, is that more than the members of the other four federal parties, they have, uniquely for politicians, what the women's magazines like to call "togetherness."

They not only work together, but they play, dine, entertain, and some of them, even live together.

Often it appears they make up a club as much as a political party.

Just knock, for instance, on the door of 300 Cooper Street, here in the capital's midtown section, and a goodly hunk of the Conservative caucus will answer.

Three Hundred Cooper Street is a big home, one of those grandly spacious, turn-of-the-century residences built in what's still affectionately remembered as "The Old Ontario" architectural style.

You know—great halls. High, airy ceilings. Cool. Quiet. Elegant. Most of all, comfortable.

Now, the fine old mansion is hived into apartments occupied by a half dozen or more Conservative MPs.

David V. Pugh, of Okanagan-Boundary; Stuart Fleming, of Okanagan-Revelstoke; Gordon Aiken, of Parry Sound-Muskoka; Cyril F. Kennedy, of Colchester-Hants; DonM MacInnis, of Cape Breton South; Wallace Nesbitt, of Oxford—a good cross-section of Canada—all stay there.

In earlier generations, other names, all Conservatives, then, too—the Bennett and the Bracken men—were on the hallway mailboxes.

In the current crop of Conservatives who call 300 Cooper either home or "The Club", are such contrasts as William Macadam, half-heeled young Etobicoke and airline wheeler-dealer who left the South Pacific and West Coast interests to do research here in the capital for British Columbia Conservative MPs and dabble in national politics (headquarters division) just for kicks, and such party Old Guardmen as Senator Walter Aesline.

Senator Allister Grosart was a guest there often in his days as quartermaster of the Conservative campaign brain trust, often drops in now for political skull sessions.

And Derek Bedson, who was Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's first executive assistant and now Manitoba Premier Duft Roblin's Privy Council clerk, sleeps at 300 Cooper on salary to the capital.

Former Ontario Premier Leslie Frost has sometimes called in to catch up with the political gossip, and Nova Scotia Premier Robt Stanfield has chewed the party rag over coffee cups there.

From time to time such other Conservative VIPs have called around ...

... as Opposition Leader Diefenbaker with a new catch of fishing stories ...

... former labor minister Mike Starr of Ottawa for a hand of bridge or poker ...

... Stratford ex-health minister Jay Waldo "Monty" Monteith to catch the "club" up on what's new at the world-renowned Shakespearean Festival ...

... even Calgary's former defense minister Douglas Harkness to mourn over the way "new boys" Paul Hellyer seems to be doing his best, or worst, to "sink" the navy.

The political "fraternity house" is owned and operated by a dear old maiden lady, Miss E. C. Malone, who has been on the Ottawa scene long enough to have known Sir John A. MacDonald. (Matter of fact, among her most prized possessions is Sir John A.'s old coat scuttlie.)

How it is that parliamentarians—who now, with their $18,000-plus, are among the nation's financial elite and well able to afford it—don't root in the new, high rise apartment luxury, with a penthouse picture window perched on the capital, but prefer an "Old Ontario" mansion on a no-view midtown street?

It's like stepping back into Confederation, confides Stuart Fleming.

You open the door, step inside and it's like another world, like going back in time to another century.

There's peace. And quiet. Horsehair sofas and antiques. Rich old parquet floors of oak. Fine, inlaid woodwork. Grand old-world crystal chandeliers.

It's like going out to "Old Aunt Mary's" of fond boyhood's James Whitcomb Riley memory.

From the Scriptures

I have heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear; Job said, but now mine eye seeth Thee. Job, 41:5.

Guard Loses Game Of Musical Doors

FORT ST. JAMES, B.C. (CP)—A young guard lost a game of musical doors to a younger prisoner during the weekend and spent 20 embarrassing minutes in the cells.

Reo Martin, 20, a civilian guard at the RCMP jail here, stepped into a cell holding a 16-year-old boy charged with theft. As Martin stepped in, the boy stepped out and pulled the door shut.

The boy was picked up 18 hours later near his home.

Doctor Works over Poison Victims

Still deep in comas Monday, with only slim chance for recovery, were 11-month-old lion cub Tommy and his collie foster-mother Bridget. Two were found unconscious Sunday in their cage at Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, apparent victims of

Newfoundland Discovery Writes New Chapter in History

WASHINGTON (AP)—Archaeologists have hailed a tiny stone wheel, found in Newfoundland, as a clue to a Viking settlement in North America nearly 1,000 years ago.

The wheel was identified as part of a spinning device and described as the first Viking household article ever discovered on the continent.

Dr. Melville Bell Grosvenor, president and editor of the National Geographic Society, said Saturday it was discovered by Norwegian archaeologist Anne Stine Ingstad at L'Anse au Meadow, Newfoundland, a historic site now being excavated.

NORSE SETTLEMENT

He said recovery of the wheel in the heart of the old Norse settlement on Newfoundland suggests that the Vikings brought their wives to attend to household chores in their unsuccessful attempt to establish a permanent settlement in "Vinland" about the year 1000.

Mrs. Ingstad said the 1 1/2-inch-wide piece of carved soapstone served as a flywheel on a wool-spinning spindle. It is called a spindle whorl.

"I am convinced this is a Norse artifact," Mrs. Ingstad said, "because of the material and the way it is shaped—flat at the bottom and rounded at the top. Many similar whorls have been found in Scandinavia and Greenland, dating from Viking times in the middle ages. L'Anse au Meadow is a remote fishing village at the northernmost tip of Newfoundland. Dr. Helge Ingstad, Mrs. Ingstad's husband, earlier had discovered the first proven ruins of a Norse settlement there.

Dr. Ingstad says the site closely fits the description given in Icelandic sagas of "Vinland," the community founded by Leif Ericson.

Historians generally have accepted that Norsemen came to America many centuries ago, but until the discoveries by the Ingstads there was no knowledge of where they landed or solid proof they had been on this continent.

Previous discoveries of alleged Viking structures or artifacts have proved not to be authentic.

Second Man Runs

Grandma's Shotgun Fells Night Raider

LANGLEY, B.C. (CP)—A 61-year-old grandmother, who sleeps with a shotgun propped against her bed, blasted a man who broke into her store in this Fraser Valley community early Monday.

Mrs. Matilda Burja squeezed the trigger of her 16-gauge weapon, sending one man screaming to the floor with shot in his leg and a second man to flight.

BOTH FUGITIVES

The wounded man was reported in satisfactory condition in hospital after undergoing surgery.

Police said both men were fugitives from Haney Correctional Institute and identified one of them as Andrew Corbett, 19.

"It's a terrible thing in a Christian country when you have to sleep with a loaded shotgun beside your bed," Mrs. Burja commented.

She lives alone in the store, about four miles outside the town, which she says has been raided "so many times, I've lost count."

Seven years ago, she was bound by two men who burst into the store and robbed her of $148 and goods. She was found about eight hours later.

Tracks Go North Ahead of Schedule

ALBERTA-N.W.T. BORDER (CP)—The Great Slave Lake railway crossed the 60th parallel into the Northwest Territories Saturday with the $86,000,000 project 18 months ahead of schedule.

A giant, noisy tracklaying machine hissed to a stop on the Alberta side of the border to permit Northern Affairs Minister Laing to install a silver-plated bolt in the rail linking the Northwest Territories with Canada's rail system in the south.

The wilderness ceremony at the nameless border point drew an unusual crowd of 150 people.

Judge Rejects Legality Plea

WINNIPEG (CP)—An application questioning the legality of the election of a former Manitoba cabinet minister was rejected Monday by a judge with the comment it made improper use of court procedure.

Mr. Justice F. M. Bastin of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench heard argument on the application—directed against Maitland Steinkopf—last Thursday.

CROWN AGENT

The application was filed by R. St. George Stubbs, a Winnipeg lawyer.

It arose from Mr. Steinkopf's role as an agent for the Crown in the purchase of land for the provincial government for the proposed Manitoba arts centre in downtown Winnipeg. Mr. Steinkopf may have contravened the legislative act by contesting the River Heights constituency for the Progressive Conservatives in the 1962 election at the same time.

AUTHOR UNAWARE

The Bastin decision said it was "difficult to understand" how the author of the action was unaware that the court had no power to act in the case.

Mr. Justice Bastin suggested the application made the court "a sounding board for publicity" and dismissed the action with costs assessed against Mr. Stubbs. These could go as high as $100.

Many Pedigreed Dogs Victims of Heredity

LONDON (AP)—Some of Britain's pedigree dogs rate as partial invalids afflicted with major hereditary defects, a medical survey by leading veterinary surgeons has disclosed.

Their report cautioned pedigree owners to seek expert advice before going ahead with breeding.

Findings of the most comprehensive medical checkup ever attempted by Britain's devoted dog breeders were contained in a 4,000-word report published by the Kennel Club.

Veterinarians found many dogs in nearly 20 leading pedigree strains are prone to such ailments as ingrowing eyelids (entropion), growing blindness (retinal atrophy), slipping kneecaps (patella luxation), soft palate and hip dysplasia (displacement).

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction in size (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator). Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded.

U.S. Satellite Photographs

Achievement 'Staggering' In Weather Forecasting

OTTAWA (CP) — The United States' newest weather satellite, sent aloft Friday to begin photographing the global weather picture, may soon help Canadians deal with everything from ice conditions on the Great Lakes to forest fires.

Dr. R. S. Retlie, the National Research Council's office in charge of satellite reception work, said the council has been receiving about 10 pictures a day from the Nimbus spacecraft, and the new system has indicated "enormous potential."

PACIFIC COAST — Two areas of Canada should benefit most from the new system, Dr. Retlie said.

"The Pacific Coast will really benefit because up until now forecasting out there has been extremely difficult. The satellite should also be very useful in helping trans-Atlantic aviation from Gander, Nfld.

"Local forecasting in the whole country will benefit as well because forecasters will have more information about Arctic weather conditions.

GREAT POTENTIAL — "The whole business is staggering from the point of view of weather forecasting."

The satellite's findings, combined with other data, will help determine the heat balance of the earth, ice conditions on the Great Lakes, including an indication of when the ice can be expected to break up, flood conditions and even the seriousness of forest fires.

"We will continue to receive the pictures and make them available to the department of transport," Dr. Retlie said.

"The new system will be integrated with their normal forecast procedures."

Surface Of Moon Still Guess

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — Nobel prize-winner Harold Urey disagreed Monday with scientists who believe Ranger 7's historic moon photos prove the lunar surface is strong enough to support manned spacecraft.

"I don't see that the pictures show the depth of the dust on the moon's surface," said the chemist Saturday. "As of now its thickness is a matter of guess."

FIRST DISPUTE

Urey, a professor at the University of California at San Diego, was the first moon expert to dispute the opinions of astronomer Gerald Kuiper of the University of Arizona and geologist Eugene Shoemaker of the U.S. Geological Survey.

At a July 31 news conference in Pasadena, Calif., Kuiper and Shoemaker said Ranger 7's television pictures showed a hard, lava-like moon surface covered with dust only several inches deep.

ONLY TESTS

Urey said the photos were "interesting, a marvelous engineering success," but "I believe nothing except tests of the strength of the moon's surface will answer these important questions about its sturdiness."

"I have discussed these photos with colleagues in Los Angeles and San Diego, people whom I respect, and all of us feel it's quite difficult to come to a firm conclusion what the surface of the moon is like."

MISSING CONFERENCE

Urey did not identify the colleagues.

Kuiper, Shoemaker and Urey are members of a U.S. federal space agency team which evaluated the Ranger 7 photos. Urey was not at the post-moon shot news conference, with Kuiper and Shoemaker because he was in Europe at the time.

Bosomy Women Less Intelligent

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A Houston authority on fertility says women with small breasts generally are more intelligent than the bosomy kind.

Dr. Erwin O. Strassman, a clinical professor at Baylor University college of medicine, has published his findings in the current issue of the International Journal of Fertility.

He said after a study of 717 childless women, he could offer doctors this rule of thumb:

'ANTAGONISM'

"The bigger the brain, the smaller the breasts, and vice versa, the bigger the breasts, the smaller the I.Q."

"There is a basic antagonism between intelligence and the reproductive system in infertile women."

He said women with large breasts usually have an intelligence based not on logical thinking but on instinct and intuition.

Dr. Strassman said he had been studying the relationship of body build to fertility for 40 years and only recently added the I.Q. component to the equation when he observed that infertile patients "stood out by their active minds and high intelligence."

"Why is it that these women, who because of their intellectual talents should be the first ones to have children, are denied this privilege to such a large degree?"

'OWN FAULT' — "First, let us state that in some instances it is their own fault. I am referring to those who marry late. They want to finish their education. Second, they hate to give up their career. They often look down on life as housewives and mothers. Or, when they are married they practice birth control until they 'can afford' children or get their ambitions to be a success in the world satisfied or not fulfilled. By then it is too late."

CODY, Wyo. — A Chicago woman, Roberta Kowczek, 25, survivor of a plane crash that took the lives of her father and brother, was brought to safety in a seven-hour horseback ride during a snowstorm.

Weapons Hoard Seized In Riot-Torn Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A squad of 100 policemen raided the national headquarters of a Negro "freedom" movement inside riot-scarred north Philadelphia Monday, seized ingredients for gasoline bombs and other weapons and arrested its leader.

Inspector Millard Meers, who led the raids, originally described the three buildings, known as Muhammad's African-Asian Cultural Centre, as a Black Muslim headquarters.

LOOTING FRIDAY

The raid came as tension eased considerably in the four-mile-square mile slum area where Negro rioting and looting began late Friday.

Window-breaking continued sporadically Monday, and there were some attempts at looting, but police guarded every corner in the 300-block section.

FREEDOM FIGHTERS

Meers said police found a loaded revolver, two bayonets and a dozen bottles — two of which had gasoline and wicks in place. Also found in the centre were pamphlets urging members to be "true freedom fighters."

Police smashed down the doors and searched the building from top to bottom. Walls were broken at some points in the search for concealed weapons.

Arrested was the "spiritual leader," Shaykh Muhammad. Meers said he was a former member of the Black Muslims.

Mayor James H. J. Tate kept in force his proclamation ordering everyone off streets in the slum area unless they could prove legitimate business. It probably will remain in effect "another week or 10 days," said Tate.

District Attorney James C. Crumlish said he was convinced the Negro rioting and looting was the work of "organized outside agitators."

HOODLUM RIOT

"This was not a civil rights demonstration," said Crumlish. "There were hoodlums rioting. They will be treated as hoodlums."

There were these other developments:

● Mayor Tate, at an afternoon press conference, estimated riot damage would run between $200,000 and $3,000,000.

Shaykh Muhammad

He said he would seek federal and state help to repair the damage.

● The secretary of the Columbia Avenue Businessmen's Association (Columbia Avenue was in the centre of the looting) accused Tate of ordering police to shut "rough stuff" in coping with the rioting. Asked about this at the press conference, Tate denied any orders had been given to police to hold back in cases of looting.

Harassed Bailiff Loses a Round To Absent Banks

MONTREAL (CP)—A bailiff who went to seize the removable property of Hal Banks, former president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), left empty-handed Monday after failing to get into Banks' suburban home.

Bailiff Perry Guralnick rang the bell at the house in the west end suburb of Pointe Claire but got no answer. He tried the back door, then the front door again—without results.

SPRINKLER SYSTEM

When someone in the house turned on the sunken lawn sprinkler system Guralnick gave up.

The bailiff's action was authorized last Friday in Superior Court after John J. Wood, expelled SIU official, filed damage action against the union and Banks for $15,000.

FINANCIAL ASSETS

Meanwhile, the government was urged Monday to ensure that Hal Banks does not get his financial assets out of Canada.

David Pugh (PC—Okanagan Boundary) and Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac—Temiscamingue) sought assurances that the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), sought on criminal charges, has not fled with financial assets.

Justice Minister Pavreau said all possible steps were being taken to see that Banks doesn't escape Canadian laws.

Royalty Evicts Beatniks

LONDON (Reuters)—A beatnik group has been turned out of an empty London house owned by Queen Elizabeth, police said Monday. Beatniks apparently discovered the empty mansion next to the foreign office some time ago. Police said 15 persons were charged under the Vagrancy Act.

Complicated Procedure

Time and Red Tape Slow U.S. Emigration

Victorians planning indefinite residence in the United States should be prepared to wind through a maze of red tape.

Officials of the U.S. consul-general's office in Vancouver say prospective immigrants should count on six to eight weeks before their applications are approved or, in some cases, denied.

LEGAL DOCUMENTS

Unlike the informality of crossing the border as a visitor, applying for an immigrant visa requires producing a number of legal documents, and at least one personal interview at the consul-general's office.

Canadians must submit evidence of place of birth, marital status, certificates of character, military record if any and other legal documents.

BLOOD TEST

In addition, they must prove they will be employed in the U.S. and have professional competence or financial resources to meet provisions of the law "which do not admit persons likely to become indigent or a public charge."

And the would-be immigrants must also be prepared to take a physical examination and blood test.

Detailed information may be obtained from the consul-general's office at 1030 West Georgia Street in Vancouver.

B.C. PARADISE FOR SPORTSMEN

BIG GAME ABOUNDS

British Columbia is reputed to have the greatest variety, quantity and quality of big game on the North American Continent. Bighorn, Stone and Fannin sheep, elk, caribou, moose, goat, deer, grizzly, black and brown bear, wolf and cougar are all to be found.

In few cases is it necessary to travel far from railroad or main highways to reach game country. Success generally rewards the hunter who is prepared to spend the time and effort required.

Much of the topography of British Columbia is rugged and steep, and following the game-trails sometimes calls for quite a degree of physical effort.

However, there are places where the hunting is much less strenuous and where those who doubt their ability to travel over the ridges and along the higher altitudes will find excellent sport.

Examples of this type of terrain are to be found on Vancouver Island.

They Cassiar, where saddle-horses can be used to extensively that a short stalk brings the game into range, is known to hunters the world over for its magnificent moose, caribou, Stone and Fannin sheep, goat, and bear.

Stuart Lake, reached easily from Vanderhoof, is wonderfully prolific of fish and game, and gives access to other lakes, quite as promising.

Some 70 miles east of Quesnel, and accessible by road, is the Bowron Lake Game Reserve, in the heart of a magnificent country inhabited by moose, goat, and bear, and containing some of the province's best fishing.

The Chilcotin country, lying to the west of the Fraser River, affords excellent hunting prospects for California bighorn sheep, moose, goat, grizzly, black bear, and mule deer. It produces many head of game animals each year.

At Kamloops the hunter can outfit for the North Thompson and Wells Gray Park areas, which produce excellent moose-hunting. It is possible to reach moose country in a day's travel by car from Vancouver.

Finest Fishing Ahead

Some of the finest and most exciting fishing of the year lies ahead on Vancouver Island.

Tyee fishing is at its peak in the Alberni Canal, at Campbell River and Comox.

Coho fishing will be at its best in the fall months, offering as it does the fine thrill of hooking coho up to and past 16 pounds on the surface with fast-trotted bucktail flies.

SCRAPPY COHO

The scrappy coho are generally available in the fall along much of the east coast of Vancouver Island.

Springs also remain available in limited quantities for the anglers going after them, but the emphasis in September and October definitely swings to the coho.

When both tyee and coho fishing passes, there is still good fishing all winter long, with the emphasis then on winter springs.

WINTER BEST

Many anglers feel that the greatest pleasure of fishing comes when you watch the weather in winter, catch a nice day, and tie into a good run of winter springs. On nice days, it is surprising to see how many fishermen are out on the salt-chuck.

When the coho move through the passes in the fall, making for their spawning grounds, they are big and mean. No longer the three-to-eight-pounders that have been particular fun this summer, the 12-16-pounders boil out to take the skimming flies and are really tackle-busters.

One tip: When fishing in the fall, take along lots of tackle. It's frustrating to hit a hot run, and have to go in with all your tackle broken or gone.

Grizzly Bears Range Wide Across B.C.

The grizzly bear is one of the most widely distributed game animals in British Columbia and is also one of the most difficult to hunt. They are hunted in both spring and fall.

During fall hunts, when they are pursued in conjunction with other game animals, grizzly bears have shorter hair than spring bears. Early spring hides are usually superior because the winter coat is fully developed.

Fall grizzlies are available over most of the northern sections of the province and especially so near the salmon spawning streams at the heads of the mainland inlets. Guide services are available from Bella Coola and other coastal points.

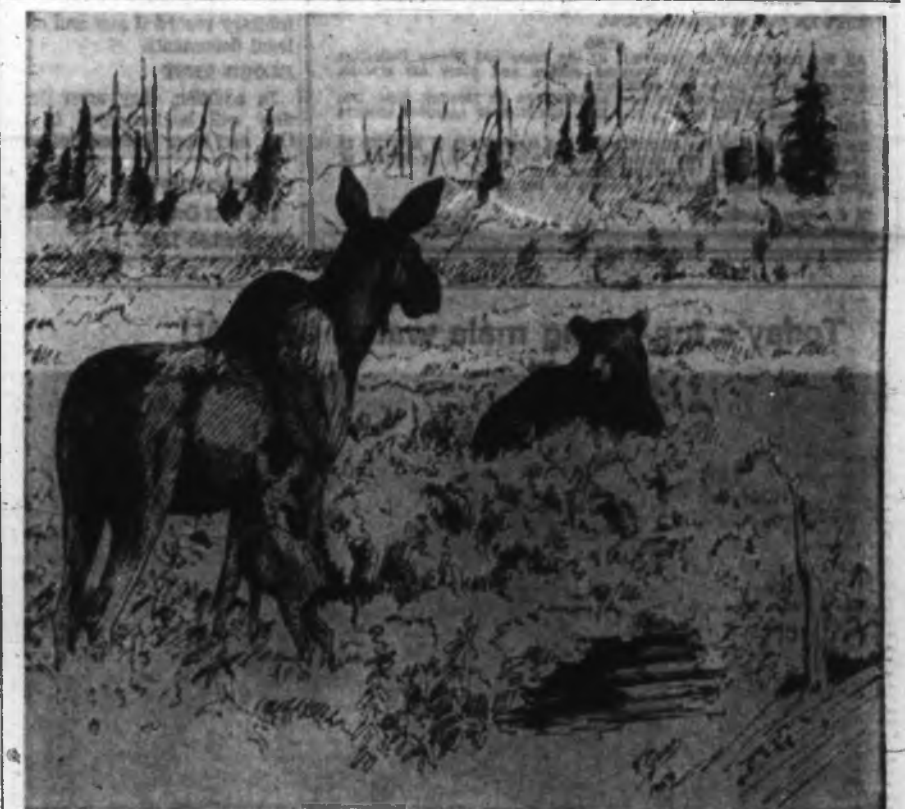

The East Kootenay also offers good grizzly hunting and excellent guiding services are also found there.

There are no grizzlies on Vancouver Island or any of the coastal islands.

Moose Move South

The moose is the largest member of the deer family found in British Columbia and an adult bull could weigh from 900 to 1,500 pounds or more.

Moose are widely distributed in British Columbia and are found in extreme northern regions and south almost to the United States border. They have pushed southward during the past 60 years or so and were almost unknown in the central interior south of Prince George until quite recently.

Best hunting is now in the south Peace River area, in the regions west of Quesnel and Prince George around areas such as Ootsa Lake, Burns Lake, Vanderhoof, Fort Fraser, Francois, Stuart, Babine and Takla Lakes.

B.C. Elk Range In Limited Areas

Elk have a somewhat restricted range in British Columbia compared with that of other big game animals. They are most abundant in the East Kootenays with the centre of abundance in the Rocky Mountains between Cranbrook and Golden. Here there is the longest season.

Elk also occur in the Trutch region of the Alaska Highway, but they are not abundant.

Small elk herds are also found in the South Okanagan, Princeton, Adams River (Kamloops) areas but they do not offer sufficient chances for success to attract large numbers of hunters.

Roosevelt elk occur on Vancouver Island, but hunter success is low.

Swans, cranes, herons and gulls are protected under the Federal Migratory Birds Act. Hawks, owls and eagles are protected under the Provincial Game Act.

One Complete Wing Must Remain on Bird

One complete wing must be left attached to each migratory bird for the purposes of identification.

Any crippled bird retrieved by a hunter must be immediately killed by the hunter and become part of his bag-limit.

Bobsledders Need Financing

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian bobsledders, who won the country's only gold medal in the Winter Olympic Games at Austria last February, wonder what they have to do to get suitable financial recognition from the government.

"It cost a small group of us $50,000 in four years to win that gold medal," Vic Emery of Montreal, driver of the winning four-man crew, said in a recent interview. "The fitness council has millions to spend, we asked for $20,000 and got $5,000."

The 30-year-old Emery, who has been in the sport nearly eight years, said the Canadian team's equipment is old and new sleds are needed if Canada hopes to continue on a competitive par with the Europeans and to "successfully defend our Olympic title."

Four new four-man sleds, a $2,800 each, and a couple of two-man sleds, at $1,700 each, are required. But Emery and his crew members — Bruce Kirby and Doug Anakin of Montreal, and his brother, Dr. John Emery of Toronto — aren't crying.

"It is simply a fact that we need new equipment and that it costs us a lot in transportation because, in order to compete, we must go to Europe and to the United States. There is no bobsled run in Canada, as everybody knows."

But they aren't ready to give it up yet. Emery and his crew will compete in the 1965 world championships at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next January and February.

They'll repair the sled they used at the Olympics. It means the crew must be in Europe a minimum of three weeks for practice runs at considerable cost to crew members, none of whom is loaded with money.

GENERAL MANAGER

Vic Emery is general manager of an aircraft company. His brother, a plastic surgeon in Toronto, is taking an appointment in New York in November. Kirby has just started his own ski equipment import business and is a free-lance geologist in the summer and Anakin is a school teacher.

Vic said interest in bobsledding in Canada has grown since the winter games but the interest could end there if "somebody" doesn't build a sled run in Canada.

"If we had one run I'm sure that Canada would be in the top grouping in the world for decades. It might cost $150,000, no more, to build a run and, if situated in a metropolitan area, I'm sure it would soon pay its way. We could get the world championships for 1967."

The victory gave Australia a 3-0 lead in the inter-zone series. Australia then won the last two.

The challenge round matches will be played in Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 25-27.

Aussies Sweep Past Sweden

BAASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Australia's tennis stars earned the right to challenge the United States for the Davis Cup Sunday when Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle defeated Sweden's Jan Erik Lundquist and Ulf Schmidt in doubles, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

The victory gave Australia a 3-0 lead in the inter-zone series. Australia then won the last two.

The challenge round matches will be played in Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 25-27.

No-Hitter Finishes Nanaimo

VANCOUVER (CP) — Behind the no-hit, no-run pitching of Jack Kine, Vancouver Eldorados Sunday night, blanked Nanaimo, 4-0, to capture the British Columbia men's senior "A" softball championship in the final game of a three-day, 12-game tourney.

Eldorados now enter the western Canadian regional championship here next weekend against representatives from Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and defending champion Vancouver Fraser Arm.

Eldorados went undefeated in their four games play with top pitching from Kine, named the tourney's outstanding player, Merle Johnson and Jack Davies. The trio gave up only six hits and no runs during 28 innings of ball.

Nanaimo entered the final when Jim Peterson hit a home run in the last of the 11th to give the Islanders a 1-0 victory over Prince George. Peterson was named the championship's top batter.

Nanaimo had earlier defeated Trail, 4-3.

City Boys Keep Cup For Cricket

John Wenman took four wickets and hit for 12 runs Sunday to lead Victoria's under-15 cricket team to a 34-run victory over Vancouver.

The win kept the Kyle Cup, emblematic of the inter-city cricket championship, in Victoria.

Peter Nation provided 16 of Victoria's 60 runs while Vancouver was all out for 26.

Cowichan, which has already clinched the Victoria and District Cricket Association championship, defeated Alcoa by 59 runs (157-98) at Shawmin Lake Sunday.

Derek Hyde-Lay with 53 runs and John Brierley with 45 led the winners. Clarence Edwards scored 27 for Alcoa.

Spirit Was Willing

SEATTLE (AP) — Viking Spirit, with Johnny Longden guiding, won the $25,000 added Longacres Mile Sunday in one minute 34 and 2/5 seconds, tying the record for the mile at Longacres race track.

Doctor Spark was second by one and one-half lengths and Poland China third in a field of 11 horses. Grey Gale was fourth.

Viking Spirit, a four-year-old owned by T. E. Brittingham of Del Mar, Calif., equalled a record set by Quality Quest in winning the Longacres Mile several years ago.

The winner paid $4.80, $3.90 and $3.30. Doctor Spark paid $7.40 and $5.10 and Poland China paid $9.60 show money.

Viking Spirit's share of the $23,350 gross purse was $21,530. The pari-mutuel handle of $115,151 broke the track record for a single race.

How to Split Pinks

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

The early pinks such as Mrs. Sinkins and White Lady have long since finished flowering, and if the clumps have been occupying the same position for three years or more, they will be getting somewhat overcrowded and should be lifted split up, and replanted.

First, clip off all faded flower heads, taking the whole stem in each case. Then ease the clumps out of the ground carefully with a digging fork and shake off the excess soil.

Rather than cutting up the clump as you would with, say, peonies, it is better to tear it apart with the fingers into pieces about half the size of the palm of your hand. From the average three-year-old clump you should get six or seven nice tufts, each one with its full complement of roots.

The site selected for replanting these pieces should be dug over to the full depth of the spade, incorporating half a bucketful of very old rotted manure or ripe compost per square yard, plus two cupfuls of pulverized limestone. I prefer this raw, crushed limestone rock to hydrated lime for this particular purpose as it lasts longer, is less violent in action, and its grittiness provides a soil texture to the liking of pinks and carnations. If the hydrated is the only kind of lime you have on hand, though, go ahead and use it but only half as much.

In planting, set your little tufts of pinks into the soil in much the same way as you would strawberry plants, spreading the roots outward rather than letting them dangle down in a narrow hole. Space your plant pieces six inches apart each way—they will grow together to make big clumps—and water them in with a few drops of vitamin B1 in the water, or use a proprietary transplanting solution.

Clumps of pinks not yet ready to be broken up can be given a tonic now to encourage the formation of new roots; this in turn will enhance the floral display next year.

The trick here is to top-dress the plants with a gritty mixture of equal parts rich garden loam and pulverized limestone. For your loam you could hardly do better than rob the vegetable plot, for if annual manuring is practised, the top few inches should be in grand shape for use as a tonic dressing. Again, if you don't have pulverized limestone, substitute half the quantity of hydrated lime and make up the balance of the bulk with coarse sand to give the desired grittiness.

Work the mixture well in under the sprawling outer shoots to encourage a more upright habit of growth, and dump a good handful right into the centre of each clump as well. If you have any of the gritty mix left after the pinks have been given their treat, use it on the other members of the Dianthus family—carnations, Allwoodii, Sweet Williams and the like.

I imagine the most widely planted of all pinks is Mrs. Sinkins, and its delightful fragrance perfumes the air in almost every garden. Yet no other plant had such a lowly origin, for it was born in a poorhouse!

Catherine Sinkins was matron of Albert House, the Poor Law Institution at Slough, in England, where her husband was Workhouse Master. Mr. Sinkins raised the plant in the poorhouse garden in 1872, naming it for his wife. Husband and wife rest in the churchyard of St. Mary's, Slough, but the flower they created has gone on to win awards in horticultural shows the world over.

Behind the Scenes with ART BUCHWALD

How Humphrey Was Chosen

WASHINGTON—Little by little the story is being revealed as to how President Johnson chose Sen. Hubert Humphrey as his running-mate. We now can tell the whole story.

In the beginning all the polls indicated that, no matter who Johnson ran with, he would lose votes. So he decided to run alone. But he needed a legal ruling on it. So he called the Attorney-General, Robert Kennedy, and said, "Bobby, can you tell me if I can have a vice-presidential candidate on the ticket?"

Kennedy said, "Yes, sir, I'm afraid you do."

"That's a shame. You don't have any suggestions, do you?"

"I haven't given it much thought, sir."

"Well, if you can come up with somebody, let me know."

The following weeks it is known that the president talked to everyone concerning the vice-presidency. He sought the advice of senators, congressmen, businessmen, and governors.

Every once in a while he wandered over to the White House fence and asked a tourist whom he thought it should be. It was a big decision and he hated to make it alone.

As time went on the list got longer. He let it be known that 67 senators, 24 governors, 134 congressmen, 50 women, and 12 secret service men were being considered seriously for the office.

And every day he called up Bobby Kennedy and said, "You come up with a name, Bobby?"

"I'm racking my brain, sir, but I just can't think of anybody."

The president conferred with intimates in Texas, close newspaper friends, Pentagon officials, and his accounting firm of Haskins and Sells. They all had suggestions and President Johnson wrote down every one.

The list had been extended to include 136 mayors, 230 state legislators, 590 county chairmen, and everyone who had contributed more than $1,000 to the Democratic National Committee.

He called up Kennedy again. "Bobby, it's getting near the time. Ah sure could use your help in this matter."

Bobby said, "Mr. President, I'm stuck. You need a young man who's held important government office, is known to the American public, has travelled abroad, and has a large political machine behind him. I don't know where we can find him."

"Well, keep trying," the president said.

For weeks a steady stream of potential candidates visited the president's office. Each one in turn was assured that when the final decision was made he would be the man. Unknown to all of them the president had added the Washington telephone book to his list of prospects.

But he was still depending on Bobby Kennedy to come up with a man.

Then two weeks before the convention the president heard the postmaster-general had told a friend jokingly he wouldn't mind the vice-presidential spot. The president hates to be pushed, so he eliminated his entire cabinet from the race.

Up until convention time the president still had no idea who he wanted to give the job to. Then on Wednesday, while he was eating lunch with Mrs. Johnson, she said to him, "You know, Lyndon, we owe the Hubert Humphreys a dinner."

The president said, "Ah don't have time to have dinner with the Humphreys, but Ah tell you what, Lady Bird, Ah'll make it up to them some way."

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

$900,000 Wasted?

Warner Brothers would have saved themselves $900,000 if they had hired Julie Andrews to repeat her stage role in their movie version of My Fair Lady. The whole of Hollywood is talking about Julie's magnificent performance in Mary Poppins for Walt Disney. She signed when Warner's bypassed her in favor of Audrey Hepburn to whom they paid a cool million. And Julie could have done all her own singing. Ah, well, she'll be doing that in 20th's Sound of Music, all those lovely numbers sung by Mary Martin on Broadway.

Sophia Loren will hit 30 at her next birthday, but is so much more gorgeous now than when she first came to Hollywood to make pictures with Tony Perkins, Alan Ladd and John Wayne. I saw her again on the late show, in Legend of the Lost with Wayne. She has learned so much since then—how to dress, how to do her hair and that wonderful walk. But she always had sex appeal. That's something you don't learn. It will be interesting to see her playing Marilyn Monroe in After the Fall for the screen. Their early lives were somewhat similar.

Sean Connery and wife Diane Cilento will be going to her native Australia to co-star in Call Me When the Cross Turns Over. Diane is currently starring with Rex Harrison and Charlton Heston in The Agony and the Ecstasy. Sean is relaxing with her in Italy following his Goldfinger toil. Diane was born in Australia but I would put her accent at mid-Atlantic.

There will be a musical stage version in London of The Barretts of Wimpole Street, called simply The Barretts. No one set yet for the terrible father—seeing Charles Laughton on the late show reminded me of how good he was in the MGM version which starred Fredric March and Norma Shearer as Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning.

Your Account Is Overdrawn!

By STANTON DELAPLANE

"A" rows upstream at the rate of two miles per hour. "B" and "C" are rowing downstream at the rate of six miles per hour. At what point do they meet?"

This was an interesting question that confounded my youth, confound it. It was the way we were taught mathematics. And still I cannot keep a cheque book.

I am still rowing upstream and the banker is coming downstream. With an outboard motor. He is too smart to go upstream. Too smart to lean on the oars.

They did not teach me that in school.

But I think they should take cheque books for example. "A" has a chequeing account of $156.59 mealy dollars. He pays $42.80 to "G" (grocery).

He pays $22.50 to "C" (car payments). He tucks $10 in "F" (foxy pocket).

Why is it that "B" (banker) sends him a note saying—"Your account is overdrawn."

That is an excellent question. And I have gathered the children about the knee for a quiz program.

Answer to Sunday's Crypt-A-Crossword

A E O O N A G R E
T U R N E R I N A
U C K S P R E A D I N G

E I V O R Y A D D E R
S H A R T S E L E C T I
P R E S I D E N T I A
U N O Y R E N D E R

"The reason 'A' is overdrawn is because he forgot to put down a couple of lousy cheques. Also because 'B' has a gold-plated heart you couldn't dent with a hammer."

"It so happened that 'A' was looking in a window. And he saw this sharp suit, see? Oh, what a sharp suit this was! Kind of plaid with ticket pockets."

"So 'A' said to himself: I have been going into the jug and depositing my money with 'B' for a long time. But I bet 'B' does not like shabby people coming into his jug."

"So 'A', being a kind-hearted fellow decided to buy the sharp suit. So he would be a credit to 'B' when he went into the bank."

This kind of education is understood by moppets. And it's not a bad story either.

"Then what happened. 'Well, 'A' tried on the sharp suit. He looked at himself in the mirror and, oh, my! Did he look sharp."

"Now, children, you cannot wear a sharp suit with old, unsharpened shoes. So 'A' saw a pair of brogues with a big leather, fringed tongue hanging out."

"He bought those, too. The banker would look at his footstoes and say: 'My old pal 'A' is surely looking like the kind of people we like to have in our jug.'"

"Now 'A' had read the ads: 'Don't carry any more money than you can afford to lose.' He could not afford to lose a crying child—being frugal but on the short. So he didn't carry any money."

"He carried a cheque book. One of 'B's' cheque books. He wrote the cheque. But he did not write it on the stub. Because the pen was leaking. And he was late getting back from lunch to the office. And one thing and another."

"And so 'B', instead of being grateful sent 'A' a feisty note: 'Your account is overdrawn.'"

"On top of that, 'B' clipped his account for a buck as an overdraft charge. Without so much as a by-your-leave, the old 'B'."

"The answer to this being: 'A' is not even able to row upstream. Being up the creek without a paddle. And 'B' is not rowing on any stream. He is on a gold-plated yacht heading for Aqualoo."

"Let that be a lesson to you."

VMD Triple Bid On Ferries Appears Lowest

Victoria Machinery Depot appeared to offer the lowest prices on three new B.C. ferries when bids were opened here Monday.

Ferry authority officials today will begin plowing through a welter of alternate bids from four West Coast shipyards as a preliminary to the award of the contracts later this week.

NOT SO GOOD

One clear factor that emerged yesterday was that the May 14, 1963 delivery date requested by the government on all three ships cannot be met.

Only one tender—from Burrard Dry Dock for a single ship at a cost of $1,711,561—promised to meet the specified delivery date.

The North Vancouver yard also bid on a second ship to be delivered June 30 at a price of $1,229,842.

ALL THREE

Both VMD and Yarrows Ltd. bid on all three ships.

The lowest price—$1,113,177 on each of the three new ships—was bid by VMD. The local yard bid $1,192,970 for one ship, $2,284,000 for two ships, and $3,339,532 for three ships.

Delivery dates promised by VMD were for the first ship in July, 1965, the second in October, 1965, and the third in December, 1965.

Paquette

Mainland Man To Head Board

A West Vancouver executive was appointed by the provincial labor department Monday as the chairman of an arbitration board which will settle the last unsettled items in the long Al-Berni office workers' strike.

The government stepped in to appoint Norman Paquette, vice-president of the management engineering firm of Stevenson and Kellogg, after the union and company nominees were unable to agree on the choice of a chairman.

About 60 members of the Office Employees' International Union (CIO) went on strike May 19 against MacMillan, Bloor and Powell River Ltd. Four thousand men in the Alberni Valley were idled for more than seven weeks.

Terms of the settlement July 9 provided for arbitration of salary increases and effective dates. Union security, key issue in the long strike, was settled earlier.

Bogus Bills Bring Warning

The RCMP's criminal investigation branch is spreading a net of warnings to Island merchants to beware of counterfeit $20 bills.

While no reports have been received of phoney bills being circulated here, RCMP warn that holiday weekends are made to order for passers to circulate unnoticed.

The police also warn that race meets and exhibitions are also favorite working grounds for counterfeiters.

"Spurious twenties passed earlier this month in eastern Canada have been described as Canadian bills with serial numbers which smear when rubbed with moist fingers. The reverse of the bills are 'weak in color and shading with a mottled effect.'"

Planchettes (the small, green dots on Canadian bills) are simulated on the bogus twenties.

On real bills the dots can be picked off the paper because they are separately made and then pressed into the bill.

August Total: Single House

The city of Victoria issued a building permit for only one house during the whole month of August.

While this may have set some sort of record for non-construction of houses, the total value of building permits for the month of August was $2,213,012 compared to $426,315 for August, 1963.

There were permits for two apartment buildings, one at 2330 Cook for 17 suites and the other at 1815 Belmont for 64. Worth a total of $184,000, and the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. building at 880 Courtney, worth $1,000,000.

UP FOR YEAR

For the first eight months of 1964, the total value of building permits is $12,285,099 compared to $10,136,490 in the same period last year.

Apartment permits up to the end of August were the same for both years, at 13. This year's 13 are worth $4,399,000; last year's, $3,372,000.

House building permits for the eight months this year are 36, last year, 40.

SAANICH UP

Saanich issued 37 dwelling permits last month; Central Saanich, five. Figures from Oak Bay and Esquimalt were not available Monday.

A building permit for the new municipal hall for Saanich at $614,269 and the permit for Woolco alterations and landscaping at Town and Country, boosted the value of permits issued for the month of August by Saanich to $1,453,794. The total for August, 1963, in the municipality, was $736,301.

However, the total for the first eight months of 1964 in Saanich was $9,043,921; for 1963, $11,342,129.

A British double decker bus arrives in Montreal in September for a six week goodwill tour of Canada which ends in Vancouver on Oct. 26.

Scottish Bull

'King of the Hill' Pure Business

The "King of the Hill" will make his first public appearance on Vancouver Island at the Cowichan fall fair in Duncan Sept. 11, as a necessary preliminary to the start of a new business.

He is Lachlan of Dalquharran, Highland bull whose picture was shown in the Colonist Sunday.

NOT CROSS, FIRST

The picture report erroneously called him a cross and said he is the first of his breed on the island.

H. O. Rogerson of Sooke was actually the first Islander to import Highland cattle, which are called the strongest type of hill animals that farmers could want.

You Can't Take It with You So He Threw $20,000 Party

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — "Everyone said they had never seen such a party in their life," said Edmund C. O'Connor on the morning after.

He was describing the affair he had for his friends, some 900 of them, Saturday night in the West Haven Armory.

O'Connor, a 61-year-old bachelor, said he wanted to thank the people who visited him while he was in hospital and celebrate the $1,000,000 worth of insurance policies he had sold in one week.

He said the bill for entertaining his friends might come to $20,000.

"I was taking them out to dinner, two and three at a time, but it was running into money, so I decided to get them all together," he explained.

O'Connor estimates his guests drank their way through 20 cases of liquor during the party. "It was all top shelf, too," he said.

Everything was on the house, O'Connor said.

O'Connor on the morning after, still wasn't worried about the bill.

"Enjoy it, because you can't take it with you," he said. "I told my undertaker to bury me in my Cadillac, so they'll say this man knew how to live."

New Ritz Hotel Operators Planning Major Changes

Major changes in The Ritz Hotel are planned by new management which takes over the hotel today.

Empire Estates Ltd. has taken a long-term lease on the 100-room hotel at 710 Fort from owner Hubert Munday of Mun-day's shoe store, whose family had owned and operated the 56-year-old enterprise about 20 years.

W. J. D. Mauch, president of Empire Realty Ltd. and a director of the leasing firm, said work will start today on cleaning up the hotel, modernizing the rooms and completing other renovations and the job may be finished in a month.

Police are still searching for a prowler who broke into a motel and stole $420 in cash and travellers' cheques about 4 a.m. Sunday.

A city policeman fired three warning shots as he chased the prowler, who broke into the Robin Hood Motel on East Gorge and stole a purse belonging to Mrs. LaVerne Conkalin of New York.

The man escaped after a chase in the Cecilia-Washington area. The empty purse was found in bushes at Simcoe and Government later in the day.

A three-man arbitration board will hear arguments on the hiring of city fireman Joseph Sutherland as Saanich fire chief when it convenes at 10:30 a.m. in Saanich municipal hall today.

The arbitration was sought by Saanich firemen who have opposed the Saanich council hiring decision. The board's first duty will be to decide if the firemen's union contract affects hiring of a chief.

The cost of furnishings and carpeting for the new city hall in Centennial Square may run about $17,000 more than estimated, aldermen learned Monday.

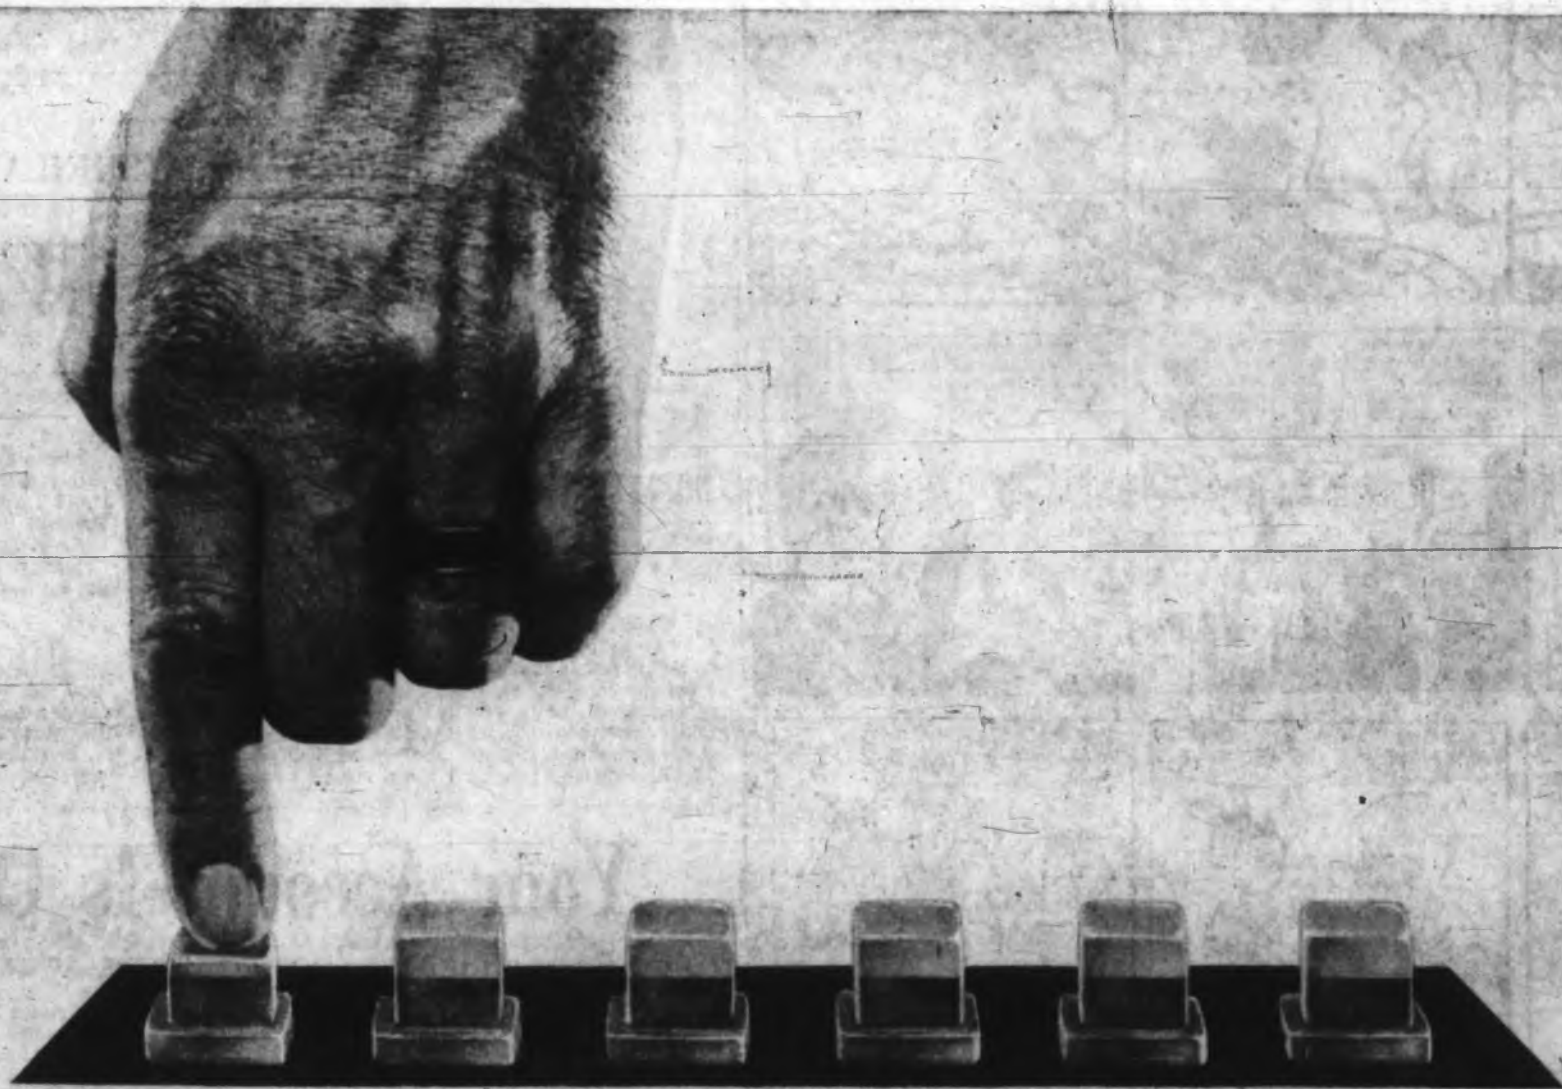

Mayor Wilson explained a primary reason was a decision to buy new, matching furniture instead of using the present furniture. The solution will be to ask the centennial committee to include $20,000 in the 1965 budget to cover the amount.

A skeleton more than 200 years old was uncovered Monday by workers at Tidaldeane, the site of an old home now providing space for a high-rise.

The skeleton, believed to be of an adult Indian, was found about 18 inches beneath the surface near the intersection of Esquimalt Road and Maitland Street.

A panel discussion on the University of Victoria, primarily for first year students, will be held in the Student Union building at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 24.

Panelists will be chairman Willard Ireland, university president Dr. M. G. Taylor, Fred R. J. Bishop, Dr. Roy Watson of the faculty association and Alma Mater Society representative Laurence Devlin.

Push the profit button

Telephones with pushbuttons on them are one of today's biggest aids to greater business efficiency (and, therefore, to greater profits). They are as convenient as having a miniature switchboard right at your finger tips and can prove a particular boon to expanding office operations.

With the compact six-button telephone, for example, you can receive outside calls on up to four separate lines, hold them and have them transferred. With the 18-button Call Director you can do all these things several times over.

There is almost no limit to the versatility of these "key systems", as we call them, and they can be adapted for large or small organizations alike. They also cost considerably less than many people imagine.

Why not get the facts on how one or more "key systems" could help your business run more smoothly and economically. We'll gladly give you an estimate on a system tailored to your own special requirements — naturally without any obligation. Intricate criss-cross water skiing display came a-cropper at Lake Cowichan regatta Sunday in first try by Rodney Tipton, 16, who was supposed to jump neatly from ramp at right while Fred Borgerson, 38, not shown, skied in front. Picture taken from towing boat shows what happened, but Lake Cowichan pair did it perfectly in later try.—(David Reidie)

Miniature Train Derailed

Damage totalled $200 when the miniature train at Mattick's Farm was derailed about 8:30 p.m. Sunday.

A wrecker truck was used to hoist back on to the rails the engine, coal tender and coach which were forced off the tracks by a log placed by youngsters.

No one was injured. Two youngsters have been detained by police as a result of the crash.

City Gets Dullest Summer

It's official—this year Victoria had its dullest summer on record.

The weather office reports the total sunshine for the city for June, July and August was 708.5 hours, compared to the second-dullest period in 1954, of 704.2 hours of sunshine, and the third-dullest, in 1916, of 779.1.

For the first eight months of this year, Victoria is 241.5 hours short of the normal amount of sunshine—1,710.7 hours. So far there have been only 1,469.2 hours.

Victoria has had more than twice the amount of normal rainfall this August: 1.04 inch, compared to the normal of .71.

Mean temperature for the month was 59.5, just a little below the normal of 60.1. Minimum temperature of 50.2 was recorded on Aug. 14.

Still Negotiating

Office Workers
Vote to Strike
At City Shipyard

Yarrows Ltd. office workers voted Monday 80 per cent in favor of strike action.

However, negotiations will take place today between union and management in the hope a settlement will be reached to make the authorized strike unnecessary.

In the delicate state of negotiations, official statements to the press were not forthcoming, but the result of the government-supervised strike vote was reported from a reliable source as 35 for and 9 against.

If a strike should be called, the union—Office Employees' International Union, Local 15—hopes for the co-operation of 12 other unions representing 659 yard workers at Yarrows in respecting their picket lines.

Donald Edwards, HMCS Naden, was remanded to Sept. 4 in Esquimalt magistrate's court Monday after pleading guilty to dangerous driving in a high-speed chase through Esquimalt streets last Friday. He previously pleaded guilty to taking a car without the owner's consent.

Liquor Store Contract Let?

Saanich council — and residents — are still wondering about the proposed liquor store.

As councillors prepared to recommend the rezoning of a 200-by-200-foot lot on the northwest corner of Reynolds and Borden for retail and commercial use at a public hearing Monday night, along came a man who said:

"I've got the contract to build a liquor store there."

He was E. R. Slegg, of Slegg Bros. Construction.

NO REPLY

Clerk Gordon Hayward said there had been no reply from a letter to the Liquor Control Board suggesting the Town and Country shopping centre as the best site.

Mr. Slegg presented a letter to his company from the board saying his firm's suggestions had been "approved in principle."

He intimated the board has agreed to a Slegg-built store at Borden and Reynolds.

Coun. Hugh Curtis said liquor board chairman recently told him: "It's up to you."

"What's up to us?" asked Coun. Curtis. "This is a wonderful game of cat and mouse."

Acting Reeve Joseph Casey explained a recommendation for rezoning would not necessarily mean approval of the Borden and Reynolds site.

Also recommended were by-laws rezoning:

● A lot on the south side of Ardrieir between Tennison and Whittier for machinery rental and workshop use.

● The corner of Douglas and Dupplin for pet parlor use.

● The corner of Tolmie and Glasgow for medium density apartment use.

● Land in the Blair Avenue sewer lateral extension area from farming and residential to residential only.

Rezoning of Quadra and Lodge for community centre use was tabled.

Two Men Talk
Wednesday

Saanich Coun. Gregory Cook and Victoria naturalist Freeman King will be two of the speakers at Wednesday's Community Planning Association regional meeting.

Meeting is slated for 8 p.m. at Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall. The fourth of a kind in its series, the meeting is called to make ratepayers aware of land use in different areas.

Municipality First

Colwood Representative
Seeks Mini-Metro Delay

The Colwood representative on the proposed joint services board for Greater Victoria said Monday he will ask for what may become an indefinite delay in mini-metro.

William Reader said he will ask a meeting of provincial and district officials Wednesday to postpone further meetings until Colwood, Langford and Metchosis decide whether they will form a municipality.

CAST DOUBT

But the representatives of the other two areas cast doubt on the proposal for a delay.

Mr. Reader said he will make the postponement proposal, to the meeting of the group formed recently to study the board, because of a forthcoming report on the prospects of forming the new municipality.

THREE STAGES

He said the report will be made public in three stages at as yet unscheduled meetings in each of the areas, and late in September at a general meeting of all three.

If the general meeting favors formation of a municipality, a reeve and councillors would be elected.

"They should be the ones who represent the area because they will be more representative of the people," said Mr. Reader.

If the people decide against the formation of the municipality, he said, a plebiscite should be called to vote yes or no on the acceptance of the mini-metro principle.

LITTLE EXPENSE

He said the plebiscite could be carried out at little expense this winter when school board seats are being contested.

"All it would cost would be printing a few extra ballots," he explained.

Board members from the other two areas directly affected by the proposal were unsure whether they would support the postponement.

DON'T KNOW . . .

Said Kenneth Rainey of Metchosis: "I don't know . . . have to think about it. But I doubt if Metchosis would go in on the municipality anyway."

"There aren't enough voters out here. I don't think there are more than 300 of them."

Langford representative Ralph Willing said he would not be able to comment immediately.

He added he had not been aware of the move and needed "time to think about it."

A Record
For Rolls

The world's non-stop roller skating record was broken Sunday by a city shipyard worker.

Frank Marthorne, of 120 Cook, skated for 24 hours and 24 minutes to break the previous record of 23 hours. He started skating Friday night with four companions but they all dropped out within 12 hours.

"Being subjected to heavy fallout of fly ash from surrounding industries is grossly unfair," the letter states. "Furthermore, it is very costly to us."

Among the listed reasons why the ash was so costly:

● Constant cleanup and removal of several tons of black ash annually; inability to keep roof gutters and drains operative; impossibility of keeping premises painted and maintained; additional washing of work clothing and personal effects.

During July, Mr. Hudson says in his letter, the firm suffered considerable financial loss because of a city water main bursting on Dunedin Street. The city's soot-clogged drains would not carry off the water and it backed into the basement of the company's warehouse to a depth of a foot.

"If there is a bylaw to regulate the amount of fly ash fallout to violate this law," the letter asks.

In the present age there are many engineering solutions to the problem if industry will only adopt them. There is no need to close an industry and, indeed, industry and the number of employed could be expanded under modern methods of waste disposal.

"We certainly hope the city will give this matter greater attention and enforce the regulations for controlling this very ghastly and unnecessary situation. Such control will enable people in the area to clean up, paint and improve their premises," the letter concludes.

School Board

Accepts Bid

Low revised of $32,013 by H. E. Fowler for a two-room addition to Frank Hobbs elementary school was accepted by Greater Victoria school trustees last night.

Allocation for the school was $31,000. Changes in the heating system and in building materials resulted in the revision of bids.

It was formed Friday at a meeting in Sooke community hall when it was felt that Mr. Martin would be unable to attend all the meetings he had to and also have time to make detailed reports to ratepayers.

On the committee are Richard Heime and Ted Shaw of Sooke, John Bartanus of Otter Point, and Frank Rumsby and James Peers of Saseenos.

And the committee approved a University of Victoria request for a parking ban on both sides of Finnsy Road on Cedar Hill.

Cross Road to the municipal boundary, to ease a serious road hazard expected when traffic increases.

Letter Tells Council:

Fly Ash Problem
Greater Today

Despite promises of improvement the amount of smoke and fly ash in the Gorge area has actually increased during the past few weeks, according to a letter to city council.

E. P. Hudson, director of the firm of Stewart & Hudson, asks why this hazard has increased in a small, concentrated area of Victoria when Vancouver and surrounding municipalities have overcome the problem.

"UNFAIR"

"Being subjected to heavy fallout of fly ash from surrounding industries is grossly unfair," the letter states. "Furthermore, it is very costly to us."

Among the listed reasons why the ash was so costly:

● Constant cleanup and removal of several tons of black ash annually; inability to keep roof gutters and drains operative; impossibility of keeping premises painted and maintained; additional washing of work clothing and personal effects.

During July, Mr. Hudson says in his letter, the firm suffered considerable financial loss because of a city water main bursting on Dunedin Street. The city's soot-clogged drains would not carry off the water and it backed into the basement of the company's warehouse to a depth of a foot.

"If there is a bylaw to regulate the amount of fly ash fallout to violate this law," the letter asks.

In the present age there are many engineering solutions to the problem if industry will only adopt them. There is no need to close an industry and, indeed, industry and the number of employed could be expanded under modern methods of waste disposal.

"We certainly hope the city will give this matter greater attention and enforce the regulations for controlling this very ghastly and unnecessary situation. Such control will enable people in the area to clean up, paint and improve their premises," the letter concludes.

School Board

Accepts Bid

Low revised of $32,013 by H. E. Fowler for a two-room addition to Frank Hobbs elementary school was accepted by Greater Victoria school trustees last night.

Allocation for the school was $31,000. Changes in the heating system and in building materials resulted in the revision of bids.

Police-Court Complex
Loses Frills

Victoria will still get its police station-courthouse complex in Centennial Square, but it will be a spare, workmanlike job devoid of frills.

This was the consensus Monday after a meeting of the Centennial Square Committee at which members of the police commission were present.

Recovered from their jolt of last week, when the lowest of three bids received for the police-court centre was $158,788 higher than the estimate they had been given, aldermen decided to hire a quantity surveyor to estimate the cost of the job after revisions have been made in the original plans.

A quantity surveyor is an independent estimator who will, after revisions have been made in plans, come to the job and calculate labor and materials.

Aldermen heard a report from architect Donald Wagg, who estimated the job and drew up plans and specifications in which he listed 24 revisions to cut cost in renovation of the police station, and 14 more ways in which expense might be trimmed in construction of the new civic courthouse.

Mr. Wagg, in his report, listed five principal reasons why he felt the estimate prepared for council for actual construction of the courthouse and renovation of the police station was so far out of line with bids.

(Estimate was $390,100. Lowest of three bids was $467,896.)

● The tender figure, the report said, included $40,000 for items such as courtroom furniture, carpets, decorative screen around the building, police intercommunication system and high screen wall on the west side of the building. Such items, the report stated, should not have been part of the building cost.

Members of the police commission, working with special projects architect Roderick Clack, will go over the cuts and revisions suggested by Mr. Wagg, consider them in the light of actual needs, and come up with a report.

New Estimates Planned

He will come up with an estimate which will be dissociated from both the city and the contractor.

Told that the surveyor's fee could be as much as $2,000 Mayor R. B. Wilson said: "Well it seems to be the best way, so I guess we better do it that way."

'Beautiful' Oaks May Survive Road Threat

Oak Bay council's works committee recommended Monday night $3,000 be spent to protect oak trees on Cadboro Bay Road. The agenda outlined a threat to the trees:

"It is necessary to move over the pole line alongside the Uplands Golf course in order to accommodate the proposed road widening.

"This would have a severe effect upon all the beautiful oak trees, and for an additional $3,000 B.C. Hydro Authority is prepared to put their line on the B.C. Telephone poles on the east side of the road."

Municipal engineer and planner G. O. White pointed out the expenditure would not affect original cost estimates for the wider roads, thanks to federal winter works funds.

However, some oak trees in the block south of Lansdowne

Road will have to be replanted if they are to be saved. To remove them from the menace of road expansion might cost about $1,200. Mr. White indicated, about $200 for each of six trees.

When some committee members expressed concern that the trees might not survive replanting, it was decided to seek expert opinion on the issue and consider it again in two months.

The committee learned the new work for welfare rule may show only parks construction, including the marina car park, and possibly the new municipal works yard.

Members passed in principle a recommendation that the Oak Bay works department be made the general contractor and carry out some of the sub-trades as a money-saving move.

Bids on the firehall addition are expected to be called soon, it was learned.

And the committee approved a University of Victoria request for a parking ban on both sides of Finnsy Road on Cedar Hill.

Film Board Bachelor Not Entirely Happy

By EILEEN LEABOYD

Mr. Paul Courtice, live-wire representative of the National Film Board in Victoria should be a happy man.

He has just seen Victoria through its third annual Film Festival, with soaring attendance up 5,000 over last year. During this summer he oversaw the screening of 110 festival films over a period of 22 nights.

This was quite a feat, even in celebration of the NFB's 25th anniversary.

But there is more to come with the board's big winter Cavalcade from October through to March, and an invitation screening of latest NFB films on a Silver Jubilee night to be held in a local theatre in October.

So it may be seen that Paul Courtice is a busy man and doing his job successfully. But, he is still not entirely happy.

Mr. Courtice does not smoke, but he sometimes looks as if he would like to tear telephone books in half.

"It's this Film Festival thing," he says. "Most people don't know what it is. Sure the crowds were terrific, but we must aim for bigger audiences. Do you know most people think a Film Festival is a collection of dreary travelogues?"

"Film Festivals," he states, "are competitive. This makes for excitement. Awards are assigned to be won within certain categories. This means that film producers try to submit material making use of unique techniques."

"This province is revealing a tremendous potential in film production."

Mr. Courtice illustrated his point by mentioning the Festival's B.C. Night, when the top award in the province was taken by well-known local photographer, Karl Spreitz.

"Karl won this award for a film he did almost single-handedly."

PAUL COURTICE

Paul Courtice, who comes here from NFB jobs in Hamilton, London and Toronto, does not have much time for reflecting about what happened yesterday. He's too busy with all the jobs of tomorrow.

The Silver Jubilee screening of new NFB films will be a Sunday afternoon in October yet to be announced. The winter Cavalcade to be held at Oak Bay Junior High School auditorium Tuesday evenings, begins October 6 and ends March 9.

Then there are the extra jobs, like arranging for the films versioned in Japanese for the ships recently here, and endless public relations work.

Still, it's obvious, the Toronto-born bachelor wouldn't be in any other job.

"NFB distribution now reaches 113 countries," he states. "This year we produced 73 versions of our films in 18 languages. It's all very healthy for the Canadian image abroad."

There were 60 Film Festivals across Canada this year. And anyone who still doesn't know what a Film Festival is should ask—Mr. Courtice.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I think there is something wrong with my 14-year-old brother but my parents refuse to talk about it.

Mat is in the fifth grade and I know he should be at least in the ninth. He slaps my mother and punches my father and they never say one word to him. Last night at the supper table he threw a glass of water in my father's face. Father just sat there. I asked him why he didn't punish Mat and he answered: "The boy's a fool and nothing can be done about it."

I worry about my brother because he does such cruel and hurtful things. Last week he put my little puppy Perky in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator. If I hadn't accidentally found Perky she would have been dead within the hour.

I've begged my mother to talk to the minister about Mat but she says "This is our cross and we must bear it."

Please tell me what should be done.—AFRAID SISTER.

Dear Sister: Mat should be receiving special care and guidance, not only for his own good and his own protection, but for the safety and peace of mind of those around him.

Parents do the mentally handicapped child no favor when they treat such a child as if he were normal.

Married at Chemainus To Reside in Duncan

CHEMAINUS, B.C. — Chemainus United Church was the setting for a pretty wedding when Rev. D. S. Lewis performed the double-ring ceremony that united Sharon, daughter of Mrs. Wheeler, and the late Truman Wheeler, North Chemainus, and Malcolm Alexander, son of Mr. Stanley Bennett, Duncan, and the late Mrs. Bennett. The church was decorated with white gladioli, and Mrs. William McBeath presided at the organ.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Glen Wheeler, was radiant in a floor-length gown of white satin, lace and net. The fitted bodice had a square neckline trimmed with sequins and seed pearls, and the bouffant skirt had lace inserts. Her chapel-length veil of nylon tulle was held in place with a pearl-studded crown and her only jewels were an Alaska black diamond necklace with matching earrings, a gift of the groom. Pink and white roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Mrs. Lloyd Clark, sister of the bride, was matron of honor in a gown of turquoise nylon chiffon over tulle and net. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink rose buds. Miss Judy Sutton-Atkins and Miss Susan Lines, bridesmaids, wore identical frocks of bluish pink satin with fitted bodice and bell-shaped skirts. They carried bouquets of white and pink carnations. Little Kelly Bennett, a niece of the groom, was a dainty flower girl in a frock of yellow nylon and she carried a basket of gold-toned chrysantheums.

Harvey Bennett acted as his brother's best man and ushers were Lloyd Clark and Ralph Carson.

The reception was at the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium.

A three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table. It was done in the form of a church with a miniature bride and groom descending steps. Toast to the bride was given by Mr. J. Cook, Master of ceremonies was Maurice Marks.

Lunchboxes on the March Again

If you've joined the lunchbox brigade again—planning, preparing and packing daily lunches for your school-age children—then you'll probably welcome ideas for keeping this daily challenge from becoming a chore. Knowing what constitutes a really good lunch is half the battle... and having a "lunchbox centre" in your kitchen, regardless of how small it is, will speed up the daily "prep" routine at your house.

Stop the Monotony

By the way, those sandwich fillings which are labelled "substantial", are usually protein foods—meat, chicken, fish, cheese or eggs, or beans or peanut butter. Quite a line-up there for your selection, considering the great varieties of some of the categories, like cheese, meat or fish. A good thing too, for sandwich monotony can be a terrible thing for both the sandwich-maker and the sandwich-muncher.

You Can Eat Milk

Something hot is always welcome at lunch, and school lunches are no exception. A thermos of soup is the easiest hot dish we can think of, and if you make it with milk, you'll be smartly dipping in an extra amount of this dairy food that's so essential for health. Other good hot dishes to send along now and then in the lunchbox are macaroni and cheese or spaghetti with cheese and tomato.

Or Drink Milk

Milk to drink is a very important part of a schoolboy's lunch... and a schoolgirl's too! It can't be purchased at school, it will carry well and keep nice and cold in a thermos. Now and then, make it into a flavored drink, or a creamy smooth milkshake.

Pack It in a Paper Cup

Paper cups are a boon for you lunchbox-packer. You can fill them with anything from a side salad to a tasty dessert. How about tapioca pudding, smoothly covering a few fresh peach slices in the bottom of the cup? Or a flavored milk pudding—instant or otherwise—mixed with a few raisins or coconut. Or that perennial favorite, rice pudding!

Sketch Says 'Don't Go'

LONDON (Reuters)—A national newspaper today objected to Princess Anne being a bridesmaid at the Greek royal marriage next month.

The mass-circulation Daily Sketch said in an editorial the presence of Cyprus President Makarios "fresh from flirtation with Moscow and now dallying with Nasser in Egypt" made the presence of any of the British Royal Family unwise.

The Sketch said the Sept. 18 wedding of King Constantine and Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark in Athens will also be attended by Prince Philip, Prince Charles and Prince Michael of Kent.

Bug-Eyed Monsters? Possible

SOUTHAMPTON, England (Reuters) — Bug-eyed monsters may exist on planets just as in the science fiction books, a British scientist said Monday.

However, another scientist said the time-travel of science fiction is not possible.

Professor W. T. Williams, a member of the botany department of Southampton University told a conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science it was conceivable that there are manlike creatures swimming on oceans of liquid ammonia on Jupiter, or rock-like men on sun-scorched Mercury.

As a biologist, he said, he is prepared to accept any bug-eyed monster of virtually any shape, provided that he, she or it is large enough to have a sufficiently big brain.

In discussing the planet Jupiter, Williams said: "It is at least conceivable that in those eternally cold seas there may be swimming intelligent animals with an internal chemistry fundamentally very like our own.

"But if there are, we shall never meet face to face, for neither of us can enter the other's world and live."

G. S. Robinson, philosophy lecturer at Southampton University, rejected the concept of time-travel.

He said it implied impossibilities by claiming that the present could be made non-existent by a time-traveller.

Williams said that if there were hundreds of millions of different worlds with life on them, it is quite possible that some had men who shared part of our history.

"In fact, if there is an infinite universe, then there must be an earth on which Hitler won the war," he said.

Commenting on Williams' theory, Robinson said it is similar to one which holds that if enough monkeys tapped on typewriter keys long enough, they would eventually type out all of Shakespeare's works.

BNA CHANGE IN SIGHT?

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Canada's provincial premiers were generally optimistic, as they arrived here Monday for the federal-provincial conference, that a way may soon be found for Canada to amend her own constitution, the British North America Act.

The BNA Act now can only be amended by the British Parliament.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia was the most optimistic that a formula will be worked out here to solve the ticklish constitutional question.

He arrived by plane at the Charlottetown Airport wearing a broad grin and told reporters he thought the chances of success are "100 per cent."

He said exploratory talks on

"bringing home the constitution" have been going on between the provincial attorneys-general in preparation for the conference, and "I think the chances are very good that we will find an answer to the problem."

Repatriation of the constitution has been a thorn in the side of the Canadian government for years, but until now, no agreement has been reached among the provinces as to the way it

History Lives For Premiers

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers sped into Charlottetown by air Monday to steep themselves in history before tackling the constitution conceived 100 years ago when the Fathers of Confederation rowed ashore here from a creaking ship.

The elected leaders will see the whole scene re-created from 100 years ago before they sit themselves in the same old leather chairs and talk about the same constitution across the same old table.

FROM SCRATCH

That first conference started the constitution from scratch. Wednesday's meeting is designed to bring it home so the Canadian Parliament can make amendments without reference to Westminster.

"I think we had better wait for the talks," said Mr. Pearson in reply to airport questions about the probable outcome of the half-day conference.

But before they get to the talks the 11 leaders are going to plunge back into history for

His Home Flooded With Wine

SETE, France (AP) — James Roney got a free delivery of 10,000 quarts of red wine Monday, but he wished he hadn't.

The wine came from a tank-trailer that broke loose from a truck and crashed through the wall of his house.

Second World War Left Lasting Scars

BERLIN (AP)—The German army marched into Poland 25 years ago today and touched off the Second World War.

The resulting holocaust brought death to millions, radical changes in the map of Europe and the beginning of the East-West struggle.

STILL FELT

The war's effects still are felt today in scattered war crimes trials throughout West Germany and in the division of Germany and Europe into Communist and non-Communist spheres.

Although Adolf Hitler considered Nazi Germany a bulwark

against communism, his action in starting the war brought the Communist armies into the heart of Europe. They stand now only 125 miles from the Rhine.

"As of 0445 hours (4:45 a.m.) we are shooting back."

With those words on Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler announced to an emergency session of the Reichstag that German troops had fired on Polish forces.

What Hitler thought would remain a local war turned into a Europe-wide conflict when France and Britain declared war on Germany on Sept. 3 and into a world war in 1941 when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

That attack was followed by Germany declaring war on the United States.

By the war's end in 1945, Germany had mobilized more than 10,000,000 men, of whom 3,500,000 died in battle. The Soviet Union, with a peak strength of 12,500,000 soldiers, suffered the heaviest casualties and officially lists 7,500,000 troops dead.

The United States mobilized more than 14,000,000 men. American deaths from combat and other causes totalled 405,300.

Germany still carries the most obvious scar of the war—the split into Communist and Western sections.

More Remain Problem

Fears Still Beset Many Chinese

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twin tales of fear were told here Monday by Chinese immigrants.

For some, granted amnesty as illegal entrants who came to Canada falsely identified as relatives of close friends, the fear has ended.

For an estimated 500 Chinese, however, the fear remains.

A 38-year-old father of three, who declined to give reporters his name, said in an interview he is not eligible for recently announced legal entry status because he came here on a forged passport.

"The fear started on the freighter trip out here," he said.

"I was afraid someone would ask me a question about Canada that I couldn't answer."

"It never really went away because any sort of check on the passport would give me away. Even getting stopped for a traffic ticket makes me cringe."

To get the false passport in Hong Kong, he said, he borrowed about $500 in Canadian currency to pay to a dealer.

Passport dealers have contacts in Canada who get real passports from Chinese-Canadians and send them to the Orient where they are altered to suit the new owners.

"When I arrived in Vancouver some cousins hid me for a few days until I found a job. Then I started hiding myself."

He said the Chinese community here has a protective mechanism that warns members when a immigration or

RCMP men are getting close.

Lam Yung Foon and Lam Yung Chow are two illegal immigrants who did qualify for amnesty. They are brothers.

"Every time we woke up, we wondered if that day would be our last in Canada," Lam Yung Chow said.

When the federal government announced amnesty in 1960, they "went down and became immigrants." Lam Yung Chow sent for his wife and four children, who recently arrived from Hong Kong.

The brothers had been in Canada, illegally, since 1956, sponsored by a cousin who said they were his sons.

But there is a third class of illegal immigrants roaming Chinatown in a quandary.

He came to Canada after falsely stating he was related to his sponsor, but doesn't dare apply.

In his case, the sponsor is here on an illegal passport. To name him could result in the sponsor being sent back to the Orient.

L. C. Hawkins, regional immigration director, says about 1,100 illegal immigrants have come forward to claim amnesty since the program was started.

He estimates another 2,000 remain in hiding. Some 500 are the forged-passport cases.

Ingrown fear of police action, prosecution and deportation keeps some from coming forward, he believes.

"This, coupled with the fact that the amnesty does not cover the illegal passport cases, is a real problem," he said.

Exiles Hit Cuban Post

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Anti-Castro communists destroyed a radar station commanded by three Russian officers and manned by 150 Cuban soldiers on the eastern coast of Cuba Sunday (Cuban exile leader Manuel Artimo said Monday night).

Poverty Stamps Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson signed into law Monday night a key part of his "war on poverty"—a permanent, U.S.-wide food stamp plan to bolster the diets of needy families.

Under the food stamp plan, qualifying U.S. families could buy $10 worth of food stamps for $6 cash, on the average, and spend the stamps in the corner grocery for almost any food item.

The law expands a pilot program started by the late president Kennedy.

The new program is expected to cost $25,000,000 the first year, $75,000,000 the next, $100,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967.

Keating Named

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Kenneth B. Keating, still refusing to endorse Barry Goldwater for president, was unanimously nominated for re-election Monday by the New York Republican party.

Negroes, Whites Go to School Without Fuss

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—White and Negro first-grade pupils went to class together in this Gulf Coast resort city Monday, the first mixing of the races below the college level in Mississippi schools.

Sixteen Negro pupils, 12 girls and four boys, quietly joined several hundred whites at four previously all-white elementary schools. They were there by virtue of a federal court order.

NO PROBLEMS

"We anticipated no problems and we had no problems," School Supd. R. D. Brown said.

Mississippi thus became the last state in the U.S. to commence public school integration below the college level.

Elsewhere in the south expanded school desegregation was uniformly quiet. It apparently signalled an end of the long, bitter resistance of a decade.

BARRIERS DOWN

Barriers tumbled in Americus, Augusta and Marietta, Ga.; Panama City, Fla.; Richmond and Beaufort Counties, S.C., and rural Amelia County, Va.

In Americus, Ga., a rural-oriented city beset last summer by large-scale demonstrations and arrests, the unannounced entry of three Negroes to the white high school produced no immediate sign of resistance.

NEW LAW

The American school board had given no hint of the desegregation. In a statement for the board, Superintendent Clay said: "This was done in compliance with the newly enacted Civil Rights Law."

She'll Star As Harlow

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Carroll Baker will play the title role in Joan Harlow, based on the stormy life of the movie's greatest sex symbol. Producer Joseph Levine presented Miss Baker, dressed like the late star, at a press conference.

Buddhists Pledge Moratorium On Disturbances

SAIGON (UPI)—Buddhist leaders today joined students in pledging a two-month moratorium on demonstrations while South Viet Nam's new government seeks to stabilize the country.

In a communique issued early today, the Buddhists added they would call a general strike if the government failed to produce democratic reforms by Oct. 27.

CLOSE MARKETS

A strike, they said, would force markets in Saigon to close and cut off food supplies to the capital city.

Students pledged a qualified moratorium on demonstrations Monday to permit the new acting premier, Nguyen Xuan Oanh, to rebuild the fragmented government.

Violent protests over a period of six days by the students and Buddhists brought the downfall of the government of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned as president.

Oanh is serving under a triumvirate of generals which includes Khanh.

British Parties Plan Election Manifestoes

LONDON (CP)—The two major parties today entered the final stage of hammering out their general election manifestoes.

The date for the election looks more and more like Oct. 15—after the Queen returns from Canada — and it is possible Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home will make the formal announcement next week.

BRIEFING SESSION

Tory headquarters announced Monday Douglas-Home will address nearly 300 parliamentary candidates Saturday as the climax of a two-day briefing session.

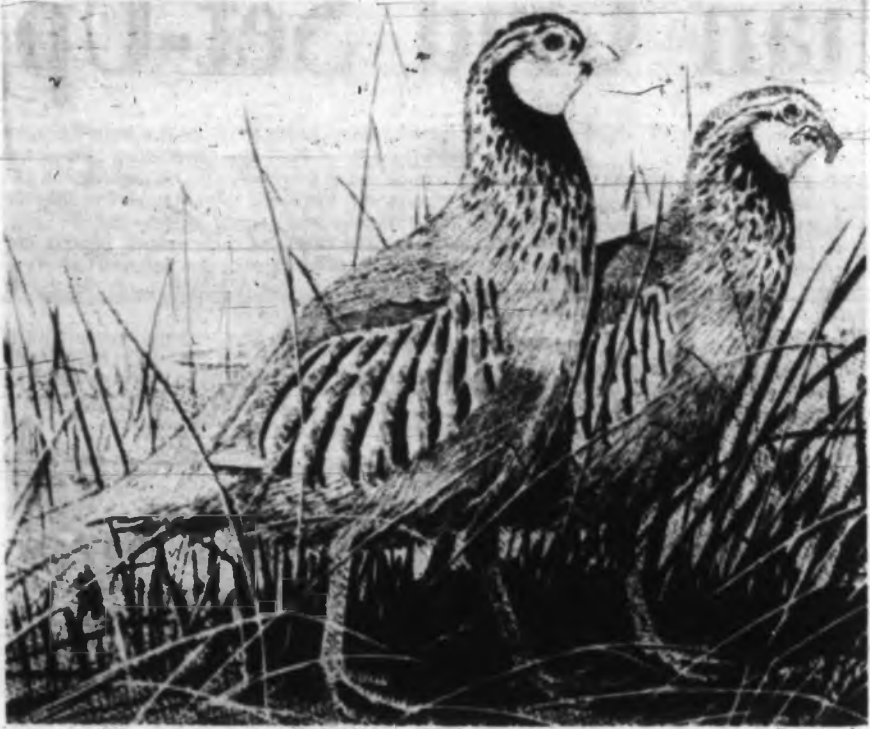

Meanwhile Harold Wilson, Labour party leader, went over his draft manifesto Monday at his office in the House of Commons with Deputy Leader George Brown and Opposition Whip Herbert Bowden.

Haircuts Now $2.25

SEATTLE (AP) — Haircuts in salons barber shops in King County will go up to $2.25 from $2, the barbers' union announced Monday. The increase, first in this area since 1955, was approved in mail referendum, 542-195.

B.C. Elk Range In Limited Areas

Elk have a somewhat restricted range in British Columbia compared with that of other big game animals. They are most abundant in the East Kootenays with the centre of abundance in the Rocky Mountains between Cranbrook and Golden. Here there is the longest season.

Elk also occur in the Trench region of the Alaska Highway, but they are not abundant. Small elk herds are also found in the South Okanagan, Princeton, Adams River (Kamloops) areas but they do not offer sufficient chances for success to attract large numbers of hunters.

Roosevelt elk occur on Vancouver Island, but hunter success is low.

Sisters Meet Again

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI — Two Russian-born sisters who had not seen each other since they parted in China in 1923 are together again in Port Alberni.

Mrs. John Clark, 708 Seventh Avenue North, was at Vancouver airport last week when Mrs. Fanya Danekoff arrived from Brazil. Fanya was two years old when her married sister said goodbye to her in China.

Mrs. Danekoff speaks no English, but Helen Clark hasn't forgotten the Russian language.

The two are catching up on 40 years of living as they talk together in the Clarks' kitchen over cigarettes and coffee.

"Oh, we were so happy to see each other," Mrs. Clark said, as she told of her anxious wait at the airport, afraid she would not recognize her sister.

When Fanya finally emerged from customs, she knew her instantly—"She looked like I did over 20 years ago."

Mrs. Danekoff wants to find work and stay in the country her sister calls "blessed Canada."

She is a widow now. She and her husband went to Brazil from China in 1959 with a group of Russian-speaking people.

Mrs. Clark came to Canada in 1923 with her husband and two children in a Russian group which settled near Ponoka, Alta.

Hundreds of Dinners

ALBERNI—Jaycees and Jayceettes served more than 400 fish dinners Sunday at a Tyee Week outdoor barbecue held on the bank of Soaness River.

Customers shared 300 pounds of fish, cooked in a concrete block barbecue pit on the

and stopped with the help of Shawnigan Lake RCMP.

DUNCAN—Arne Sarman, no fixed address, was charged in magistrate's court Monday with shoplifting and was remanded without plea pending a probation report. The charge involves the removal of a bottle of vanilla extract from a supermarket. Sarman said he had bought groceries and put the extract bottle in a pocket by mistake.

Galiano Folk Pay For Paint

GALIANO ISLAND—About 70 people turned out Saturday night to dance to the music of the MidKnights of Vancouver, the first musical group to play on the island in some time.

Proceeds from the dance will be used to pay for painting of the interior of Galiano Hall, where the dance was held.

The painting was recently completed by a volunteer effort led by Steve Riddell. Many residents came out to the three sessions it took to complete the light-brown paint job. Mr. Riddell is the treasurer of the hall club.

Scottish Bull

'King of the Hill' Pure Business

The "King of the Hill" will make his first public appearance on Vancouver Island at the Cowichan fall fair in Duncan Sept. 11, as a necessary preliminary to the start of a new business.

NOT A CROSS, FEAT

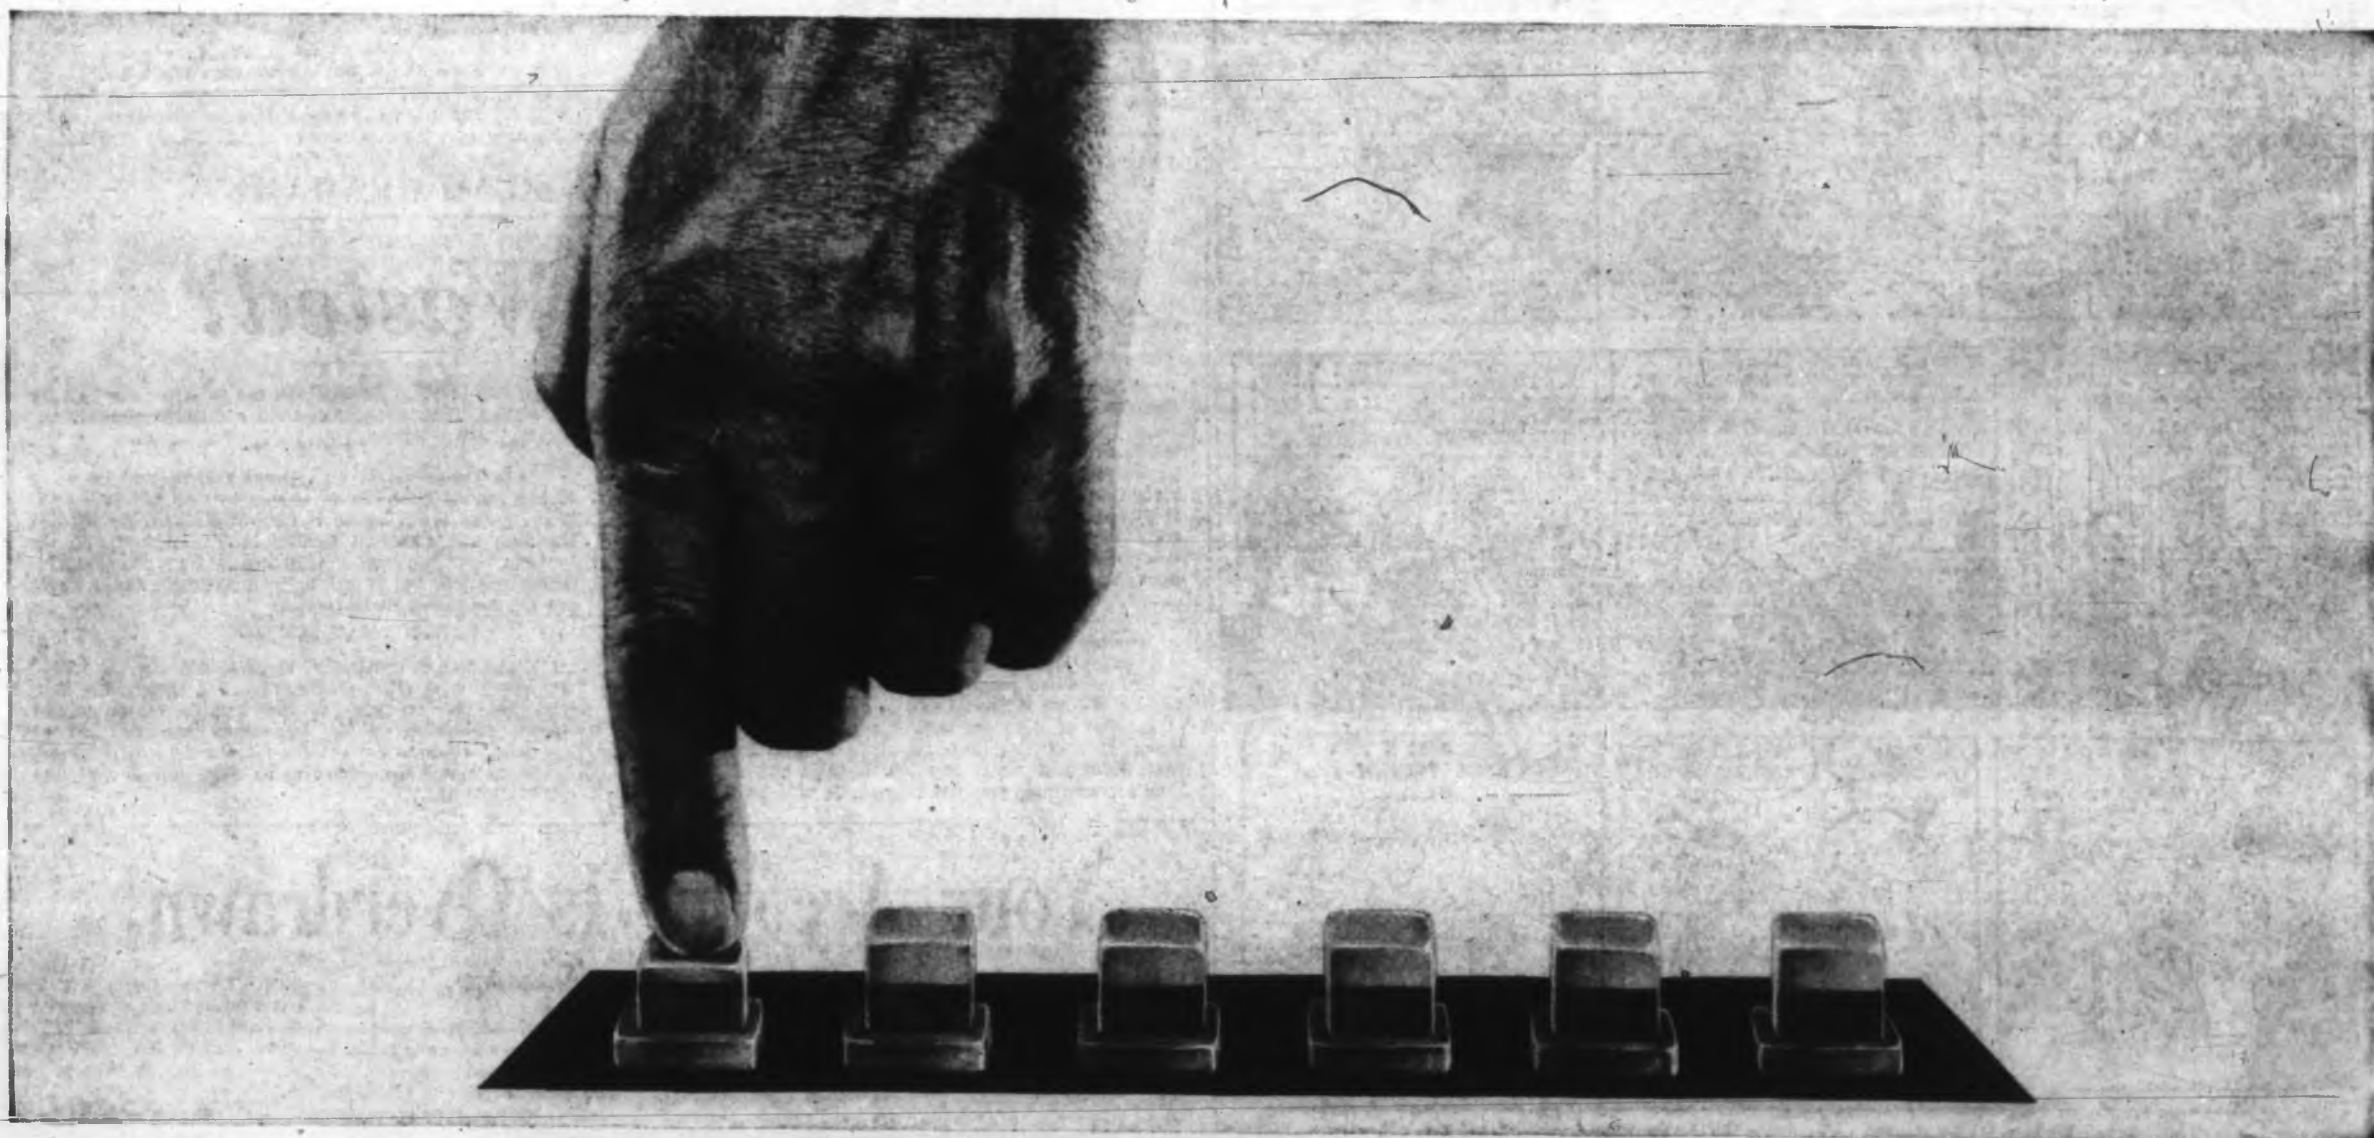

The picture report erroneously called him a cross and said he is the first of his breed on the Island.

H. O. Rogerson of Sooke was actually the first Islander to import Highland cattle, which are called the strongest type of hill animals that farmers could want.

His came from the island of Islay while Lachlan was the first exported by famed breeder John Stewart of Dalquharran Castle in Virgin, Ayrshire, and cost between $1,500 and $2,000. He arrived July 5, is owned by Mrs. J. E. Godman of Victoria, and is housed on the J. I. Mutter farm at Prospect Lake, where the Mutters have two purebred registered heifers.

Mrs. Mutter said Monday the Victorians have arranged the Cowichan appearance in hopes that others on the Island with Highland cattle will be interested in using Lachlan, thereby starting a new breeding business.

Highland cattle will browse on rocky and other poor land which other animals cannot use.

Push the profit button

Telephones with pushbuttons on them are one of today's biggest aids to greater business efficiency (and, therefore, to greater profits). They are as convenient as having a miniature switchboard right at your finger tips and can prove a particular boon to expanding office operations.

With the compact six-button telephone, for example, you can receive outside calls on up to four separate lines, hold them and have them transferred. With the 18-button Call Director you can do all these things several times over.

There is almost no limit to the versatility of these "key systems", as we call them, and they can be adapted for large or small organizations alike. They also cost considerably less than many people imagine.

Why not get the facts on how one or more "key systems" could help your business run more smoothly and economically. We'll gladly give you an estimate on a system tailored to your own special requirements — naturally without any obligation. Half-finished Bowen Park pool: winter works casualty?

Partial Ban Sought

Winter Works Stalled?

Meeting Due on Sunday Sport

NANAIMO—A meeting will be held to discuss the partial ban on Sunday sport sought by United Church women here, city council decided last night.

Council and members of the civic properties and recreation commission will meet the women soon to talk about their bid for a sports ban until 1 p.m., so sports-minded children may attend Sunday school.

The city at present has no Sunday sport legislation.

A letter from Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell advising council he had received Nanaimo's criticism of his work for welfare plan was received and filed after Ald. Ted Barsby said:

"It's entirely up to us to go to the 11th Avenue North in Port Alberni and push a little."

Mr. Campbell's ruling that only men on welfare can be used for most winter workers is expected to slow the $360,000 Commercial Inlet development project and possibly stall the $35,000 Bowen Park swimming pool project for a year.

The pool, a Kinsmen's project, is about half finished. Buildings and the heating, chlorination and filtration systems still have to be built.

Ald. Jack Parker, noting that winter works are to start Nov. 1, suggested the properties and winter works committees begin lining up the winter works budget.

"We'll be limited this year in money," he said. "There's no question of that."

Council reminded residents the voters' list closes Sept. 30. A fluoridation plebiscite will be held this December.

It was learned all city employees can be on the payroll deduction plan for the United Appeal this fall. Previously, only the office staff was on the plan.

Crashes Take Toll

Nanaimo Teen-Ager Critically Injured

NANAIMO—A Nanaimo teen-ager was reported in critical condition Monday night in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital after a Sunday night car crash which injured four people.

Vote Due On IWA Officers

COURTESAY—Only one officer was unopposed when nominations for the annual elections of the IWA's Courtesay local were made Sunday at the annual meeting in the Native Son's hall.

The more than 80 voting delegates in attendance nominated Douglas Wilson as three-year trustee, without opposition.

NEXT 10 DAYS

The elections will take place within the next 10 days as the general membership chooses between these men:

Olli Rajala and Max Salter, president; Nick Chernoff and Karl Lidberg, financial secretary; Ken Einarsen and Stanley Lewis, recording secretary; Felix McCabe and Chester Watkins, first vice-president; Jake Bergin and Russell Williams, second vice-president; Earl Kemps and Wendell Tinkham, third vice-president; John Bodner and Herb Wheatly, conductor, and Ed Morgan and Roy Williams, warden.

RE-ELECTED TO BOARD

Mr. Salter, the incumbent president, was re-elected to the IWA regional board and Mr. Lidberg, the present financial secretary, was named as his alternate.

Regional convention delegates are Mr. Lidberg, Mr. Williams, Mr. Kemps and Mr. McCabe, with Mr. Lewis and Rudy Vandendorp as alternates. B.C. Federation delegates are Mr. Salter, Mr. Lidberg and Mr. Lewis with Ed Thompson as alternate.

Tony Horton, Herb Smith and David King were named to the balloting committee, which is in charge of the elections.

Police said Donna Marie Holland, 740 Railway, suffered multiple injuries when the car, in which she was riding, went out of control and rolled off the Island Highway two miles south of Nanaimo.

ALSO INJURED

In satisfactory condition were Richard Hallonquist, 830 Milton, identified as the driver, and passengers Brian Deller of 830 Milton and Tina Bour of 11th Avenue North in Port Alberni.

Police added the vehicle was a total wreck.

DOWN BANK

Edgar Bartram and his wife Irene of Alberni were described as in satisfactory condition in West Coast General Hospital Monday after treatment for bruises and abrasions following the wreck of their 1964 car.

Police said Mrs. Bartram was driving the car when it went out of control at a left curve on the west side of the mountain, about 1½ miles from the junction of the Alberni and Port Alberni highways. The vehicle rolled down a 50-foot embankment.

ON ROOF

A 1953 car was wrecked on another left curve, on the east side of the mountain, when it turned over and landed on its roof and on a guardrail.

Driver Brian Washington and passenger David Mattson, both of Victoria, were released from hospital after treatment for cuts and bruises.

NEAR GROVE

Edward Hembrough of Qualicum and passenger Donald Phillips of Deep Bay were similarly released after treatment for minor injuries in another accident just west of Cathedral Grove.

Police said the car went out of control on a curve and landed in a ditch.

Biggest Crowd Yet Enjoys Regatta

LAKE COWICHAN — More than 2,000 people, the biggest crowd in the history of the event, came from many Canadian and U.S. centres Sunday to enjoy the ninth annual Kiwanis-sponsored Lake Cowichan regatta.

Results of water and other sports events at the regatta are on Page 16.

PRINCESSES

Linda Davies, 17, was chosen by a three-judge panel as Lady of the Lake and crowned by 1963 titleholder Darlene Kidds, 18.

Her princesses are Denise Erickson, 18, and Billie Anne Palsen, 16.

The judges were Mrs. Jack Sotherton of Honeycomb Bay and Mrs. Nona Damaske and Miss Helen Beames of Victoria.

Lieutenant Governor Pearkes officially opened the regatta. He and Mrs. Pearkes were guests of honor at a luncheon in the Riverside Inn before the regatta and at an afternoon reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sotherton.

Most of the audience attention was devoted to the sailing exhibition, up to 100 feet, by Vancouver water skier and kite flier Rudy Tuschek, the hydroplane races and the cross-country water-skiing jumps.

Other events include sailboat races, outboard motorboat races, junior swims and comic displays by members of the Lake Cowichan Water Ski Club.

Light Plane Object Of Search

COMOX — An Albatross aircraft from the 121 Search and Rescue unit at RCAF Station Comox searched the intended route of a missing light plane on the B.C. mainland until dark last night and will resume at dawn today.

The Albatross was called to duty after Gary Warren of North Vancouver reported the single-engine plane of his father, Gordon Warren, was overdue.

NEVER ARRIVED

Mr. Warren, who was alone, left from the Deep Cove airport near North Vancouver at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and was to pick up two hunters the next day at Gunn Lake, about 30 miles northwest of Lillooet in the Cariboo.

The hunters, who were to be flown 40 miles to Tasseeo Lake, somehow got word out that the plane failed to reach the rendezvous point.

A West Vancouver executive was appointed by the provincial labor department Monday as the chairman of an arbitration board which will settle the last unsettled items in the long Alberni office workers' strike.

FAILED TO AGREE

The government stepped in to appoint Norman Paquette, vice-president of the management engineering firm of Stevenson and Kellogg, after the union and company nominees were unable to agree on the choice of a chairman.

About 60 members of the Office Employees' International Union (CIO) went on strike May 19 against MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. Four thousand men in the Alberni Valley were idled for more than seven weeks.

ARBITRATION

Terms of the settlement July 9 provided for arbitration of salary increases and effective dates. Union security, key issue in the long strike, was settled earlier.

'Terror' Fined $150

COURTESAY — A man described by Magistrate John Ryland as "terror on the highway" was fined $150 in magistrate's court Monday and given a four-month licence suspension.

Edward Kenneth Shewish of Alberni was sentenced after pleading guilty to a dangerous driving charge.

Court was told the Shewish car was clocked by RCMP at 110 miles an hour on the highway south of Union Bay. He forced several cars from the road during his wild ride.

Shewish said he was in a hurry to get home.

Tidal Wave Fund Closed on Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Alberni Valley and West Coast Disaster Fund closed Monday and no more claims will be received, said fund chairman Edward Benson.

He said $1,400,000 was distributed to about 725 claimants and there were only one or two minor claims left to be assessed.

The money went to victims of tidal waves generated by the Alaska earthquake in March.

Parkville Weekend

Visitor's Spring Derby Winner

PARKVILLE — A 25.13 spring caught off French Creek by Lorne Lum, a visitor from Vancouver, won the first prize of $75 in the annual Parkville and District Fish and Game Association salmon derby at the weekend.

Al Wilson of Qualicum Beach won $30 for the second largest salmon, a 16.14-pounder. Ab Scott of Nanaimo Bay was third in the salmon section with a 16.3-pounder.

The $20 prize for the biggest coho went to Walter Houston of Qualicum Beach with an 11.7 catch made near French Creek on a bucktail fly. Tom Dodds of Parkville was second with a 10.10 coho.

Ken Woodford of Parkville netted a 9.1 coho to win the junior award. Second was Chris Daniel of Nanaimo with another coho, 6.12.

Mrs. W. Yirrel of Coombs caught a 10.4 salmon to win the women's prize and an 8.4 coho won the hidden-weight award for Wilf Dickenson of Qualicum Beach.

About 300 fishermen took part in the derby, weighing in about 160 fish during the two days in spite of bad weather Saturday, when some boats had difficulty returning to port because of heavy seas.

The weather was much better Sunday, when more than 500 local residents and visitors ate up all of the 200 pounds of salmon cooked for a barbecue at French Creek. John McKeever was derby committee chairman and Marcel Beuselinck was in charge of the barbecue.

She scored firsts in two divisions, general bobbin lace and bobbin lace handkerchief trimmed over one inch. Mrs. Janet MacKenzie of 3136 Sherman in Duncan was second in the latter division.

Mrs. Graham also scored a second in bobbin lace tray cloth and third in bobbin lace handkerchief trimmed and not over an inch.

Mrs. M. Webber of 365 Alder in Campbell River was first in the general rug section. Mrs. Mary McBee of 1688 Comox Avenue in Comox first in applique work quilt and Mrs. F. Eden, also of 565 Alder in Campbell River, first in fancy plain-colored quilt.

Parkville, in the eury crochet dolly division; Mrs. Katherine MacLean of Charlesworth Road in Ganges in the general crochet article section; Phillis Hutelings, 630 Cedar in Campbell River, in the embroidered bedspread division, and Mona Turnbull of the Nanaimo Indian Hospital in children's clothing made from a worn article.

Exiles Hit Cuban Post

PANAMA CITY (AP)—Anti-Castro commandos destroyed a radar station commanded by three Russian officers and manned by 150 Cuban soldiers on the eastern coast of Cuba Sunday, Cuban exile leader Manuel Artimo said Monday night.

Poverty Stamps Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson signed into law Monday night a key part of his "war on poverty"—a permanent, U.S.-wide food stamp plan to bolster the diets of needy families.

Under the food stamp plan, qualifying U.S. families could buy $10 worth of food stamps for $6 cash, on the average, and spend the stamps in the corner grocery for almost any food item.

The law expands a pilot program started by the late President Kennedy.

The new program is expected to cost $25,000,000 the first year, $75,000,000 the next, $100,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967.

Keating Named

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Kenneth B. Keating, still refusing to endorse Barry Goldwater for president, was unanimously nominated for re-election Monday by the New York Republican party.

Negroes, Whites Go to School Without Fuss

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—White and Negro first-grade pupils went to class together in this Gulf Coast resort city Monday, the first mixing of the races below the college level in Mississippi schools.

Sixteen Negro pupils, 12 girls and four boys, quietly joined several hundred whites at four previously all-white elementary schools. They were there by virtue of a federal court order.

'NO PROBLEMS'

"We anticipated no problems and we had no problems," School Supt. R. D. Brown said. Mississippi thus became the last state in the U.S. to commence public school integration below the college level.

Elsewhere in the south expanded school desegregation was uniformly quiet. It apparently signalled an end of the long, bitter resistance of a decade.

BARRIERS DOWN

Barriers tumbled in Americus, Ga.; Augusta and Marietta, Ga.; Panama City, Fla.; Richmond and Beaufort Counties, S.C., and rural Amelia County, Va.

In Americus, Ga., a rural-oriented city beset last summer by large-scale demonstrations and arrests, the unannounced entry of three Negroes to the white high school produced no immediate sign of resistance.

NEW LAW

The American school board had given no hint of the desegregation. In a statement for the board, Superintendent Clay said: "This was done in compliance with the newly enacted Civil Rights Law."

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Canada's provincial premiers were generally optimistic, as they arrived here Monday for the federal-provincial conference, that a way may soon be found for Canada to amend her own constitution, the British North America Act.

The BNA Act now can only be amended by the British Parliament.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia was the most optimistic that a formula will be worked out here to solve the ticklish constitutional question.

He arrived by plane at the Charlottetown Airport wearing a broad grin and told reporters he thought the chances of success are "100 per cent."

He said exploratory talks on

"bringing home the constitution" have been going on between the provincial attorneys-general in preparation for the conference, and "I think the chances are very good that we will find an answer to the problem."

Repatriation of the constitution has been a thorn in the side of the Canadian government for years, but until now, no agreement has been reached among the provinces as to the way it

History Lives For Premiers

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers sped into Charlottetown by air Monday to steep themselves in history before tackling the constitution conceived 100 years ago when the Fathers of Confederation rowed ashore here from a creaking ship.

The elected leaders will see the whole scene recreated from 100 years ago before they sit themselves in the same old leather chairs and talk about the same constitution across the same old table.

FROM SCRATCH

That first conference started the constitution from scratch. Wednesday's meeting is designed to bring it home so the Canadian Parliament can make amendments without reference to Westminster.

"I think we had better wait for the talks," said Mr. Pearson in reply to airport questions about the probable outcome of the half-day conference.

But before they get to the talks the 11 leaders are going to plunge back into history for

His Home Flooded With Wine

SETE, France (AP)—Jaimes Rony got a free delivery of 10,000 quarts of red wine Monday, but he wished he hadn't.

The wine came from a tank-trailer that broke loose from a truck and crashed through the wall of his house.

Buddhists Pledge Moratorium On Disturbances

SAIGON (UPI)—Buddhist leaders today joined students in pledging a two-month moratorium on demonstrations while South Viet Nam's new government seeks to stabilize the country.

In a communique issued early today, the Buddhists added they would call a general strike if the government failed to produce democratic reforms by Oct. 27.

CLOSE MARKETS

A strike, they said, would force markets in Saigon to close and cut off food supplies to the capital city.

Students pledged a qualified moratorium on demonstrations Monday to permit the new acting premier, Nguyen Xuan Oanh, to rebuild the fragmented government.

Violent protests over a period of six days by the students and Buddhists brought the downfall of the government of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, who resigned as president.

Oanh is serving under a triumvirate of generals which includes Khanh.

The Buddhist statement praised the goodwill of the Roman Catholic Church in South Viet Nam, thus easing tensions between the two religious groups, which had engaged in murderous riots last week.

British Parties Plan Election Manifestoes

LONDON (CP)—The two major parties today entered the final stage of hammering out their general election manifestoes.

The date for the election looks more and more like Oct. 15—after the Queen returns from Canada—and it is possible Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home will make the formal announcement next week.

BRIEFING SESSION

Tory headquarters announced Monday Douglas-Home will address nearly 300 parliamentary candidates Saturday as the climax of a two-day briefing session.

Meanwhile Harold Wilson, Labor party leader, went over his draft manifesto Monday at his office in the House of Commons with Deputy Leader George Brown and Opposition Whip Herbert Bowden.

Members of the party's campaign committee also had their first look at the completed

Fears Still Beset Many Chinese

VANCOUVER (CP)—Twin tales of fear were told here Monday by Chinese immigrants. For some, granted amnesty as illegal entrants who came to Canada falsely identified as relatives of close friends, the fear has ended.

For an estimated 500 Chinese, however, the fear remains. "A 38-year-old father of three, who declined to give reporters his name, said in an interview he is not eligible for recently announced legal entry status because he came here on a forged passport. "The fear started on the freighter trip out here," he said.

"I was afraid someone would ask me a question about Canada that I couldn't answer."

"It never really went away because any sort of check on the passport would give me away. Even getting stopped for a traffic ticket makes me cringe."

To get the false passport in Hong Kong, he said, he borrowed about $500 in Canadian currency to pay to a dealer. Passport dealers have contacts in Canada who get real passports from Chinese-Canadians and send them to the Orient where they are altered to suit the new owners.

"When I arrived in Vancouver some cousins hid me for a few days until I found a job. Then I started hiding myself." He said the Chinese community here has a protective mechanism that warns members when immigration or RCMP men are getting close. Lam Yung Foon and Lam Yung Chow are two illegal immigrants who did qualify for amnesty. They are brothers.

"Every time we woke up, we wondered if that day would be our last in Canada," Lam Yung Chow said.

When the federal government announced amnesty in 1960, they "went down and became immigrants," Lam Yung Chow said for his wife and four children, who recently arrived from Hong Kong.

The brothers had been in Canada, illegally, since 1956, sponsored by a cousin who said they were his sons.

But there is a third class of illegal immigrant roaming Chinatown in a quandary.

He came to Canada after falsely stating he was related to his sponsor. He should qualify for amnesty, but doesn't dare apply.

In his case, the sponsor is here on an illegal passport. To name him could result in the sponsor being sent back to the Orient.

L. C. Hawkins, regional immigration director, says about 1,100 illegal immigrants have come forward to claim amnesty since the program was started.

He estimates another 2,000 remain in hiding. Some 500 are the forged-passport cases. Ingrown fear of police action, prosecution and deportation keeps some from coming forward, he believes.

"This, coupled with the fact that the amnesty does not cover the illegal passport cases, is a real problem," he said.

More Remain Problem

Second World War Left Lasting Scars

BERLIN (AP)—The German army marched into Poland 25 years ago today and touched off the Second World War.

The resulting holocaust brought death to millions, radical changes in the map of Europe and the beginning of the East-West struggle. Germany was left prostrate with its capital, Berlin, a pile of rubble.

As of 9:45 hours (4:45 a.m.)

We are shooting back.

Wish those words on Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler announced to an emergency session of the Reichstag that German troops had fired on Polish forces.

What Hitler thought would remain a local war turned into a Europe-wide conflict when France and Britain declared war on Germany on Sept. 3 and into a world war in 1941 when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

Although Adolf Hitler considered Nazi Germany a bulwark

against communism, his action in starting the war brought the Communist armies into the heart of Europe. They stand now only 125 miles from the Rhine.

By the war's end in 1945, Germany had mobilized more than 10,000,000 men, of whom 3,500,000 died in battle. The Soviet Union, with a peak strength of 12,500,000 soldiers, suffered the heaviest casualties and officially lists 7,500,000 troops dead.

The United States mobilized more than 16,000,000 men. American deaths from combat and other causes totalled 405,300.

Germany still carries the most obvious scar of the war—the split into Communist and Western sections.
